'FINAL' STRIKE PARLEY TONIGHT

Japan's Shells Kill 3 British Soldiers

AMERICANS IN LINE OF FIRE FROM BIG GUNS

Britishers Die as Explosives Land Inside Boundary of Foreign Settlement.

SEVERAL OTHERS HURT

Methodist School For Girls Ignited by Bombs Dropped From Jap Plane.

SHANGHAI — (AP) — Three British Ulster riflemen were killed and several wounded tonight during Japanese shelling of Hungjao, suburb to the west of the international settlement and home of many Americans and other foreigners, British military headquarters announced.

Artillery shelling and aerial attack in the Chinese-Japanese war spread damage among American mission and other foreign property, and during the day British defense lines along the settlement frequently had been under fire.

Fall Inside Lines.

One unidentified foreigner and several Chinese also were reported killed by Japanese shells falling inside the British lines.

Many Americans and other foreigners abandoned their magnificent homes in Hungjao to seek safety within the settlement, as the battle for possession of Shanghai centered in the suburban area.

Throughout the day shells exploded near posts manned by the Royal Ulster riflemen. Japanese artillery, bombarding Chinese in the Hungjao area, dropped eight shells into Jessfield park alone. One of the shells damaged St. John's university.

A British policeman's motorcycle was wrecked a few seconds after he stepped from it. Major General A P. D. Telfer-Smollett, in command of the British forces, went quickly to the scene. Then he called on Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, Japanese naval commander in the Shanghai sector.

Fire American School.

Meanwhile in Sungkiang, several miles west of Shanghai, the American Southern Methodist Susan B. Wilson School for Girls was set afire and almost destroyed, an American's home was demolished, the Southern Methodist mission compound was damaged and its 60 occupants sought refuge in dugouts during bombardment by 20 Japanese planes.

British army authorities blockaded Soochow creek with junks and cargo boats to forestall Japanese naval attacks on the Chinese "lost battalion" beleaguered opposite the international settlement.

STUDY BUDGET

Roosevelt Calls Advisors to Hyde Park Conference.

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (AP) — President Roosevelt called his chief budget advisers to the quiet of his study here today for an extended round of conferences on balancing the treasury's books.

Secretary Morgenthau and Under-secretary Magill of the treasury were due from Washington this evening to pitch in with the president on the problem.

Mr. Roosevelt has said he hopes to bring income and outgo into balance during the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Morgenthau has said he did not believe any one could tell at this time whether that could be done.

The two chief treasury officials will talk with the president this evening and probably tomorrow.

SNOW BLAMED

U. S. Bureau Holds Sudden 'Squalls' Caused Crash.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The air commerce bureau said today that "unexpectedly severe local snow squalls" probably caused the crash of a transport airplane near McNary, Ariz., last April 3, in which eight persons died.

The plane was registered by a Dutch company, and was being flown to New York for export to the Netherlands.

BURNS TRASH AND $102

BARRINGTON, N. J.—(AP)—Earl Shappell cleaned up his filling station. He gathered up all the loose paper, empty cartons and boxes and burned them. The place looked fine. Then he remembered $102 in cash had been in one of the boxes consigned to the flames.

Cold Wave Halts Fears of New Flood Disaster

Hundreds Flee Homes In W. Va., Towns as Ohio River Spills Over.

PITTSBURGH WAITS

Residents on Riverfront Awaiting Crest, Fall at Junction Point.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — A cold wave swept the western slopes of the Allegheny mountains today, halting a three-day downpour as high waters raced on this steel city from southwestern Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia.

The Monongahela river was rising and government observers said the Ohio river at the junction of the Monongahela and the Allegheny would reach a crest of 27 feet—two above flood level—at noon.

Danger Abates.

They predicted the first October highwaters in the city's history probably would overflow sections of lowlying streets and flood cellars in riverfront homes.

The Allegheny river was almost stationary, however, and observers said that only when the two rivers rise at the same time—as in the disastrous St. Patrick day flood of 1936—is there danger of a major inundation.

Before the rain stopped, hundreds of families were driven from their homes in three central West Virginia towns and at least fifty families fled as highwaters invaded Meyersdale in southwestern Pennsylvania.

In Johnstown, Pa., famed flood city, the Conemaugh and Stony Creek rivers rose rapidly to 9 6 feet—3.4 feet short of flood stage—but began to drop before midnight.

Five mines along the Monongahela river in Pennsylvania closed, throwing 2,500 men out of work until the rivers return to normal.

Towns Isolated.

Weston, Buckhannon and Webster Springs in central West Virginia were isolated as mountain streams blocked off highways and spilled into the streets. Schools closed but factories continued operations and observers said damage probably would be small.

The West Fork, flowing from Weston, covered sections of Clarksburg and the Elk river swept into the suburbs of Charleston, capital in the center of the state.

The Potomac river in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia covered streets in Ridgeley, near flood-stricken Cumberland, Md., and forced power plants near Martinsburg to suspend operations.

'Framed,' Charge

Capt. Leopold McLaglen, above, brother of Victor McLaglen, screen star, being held by Los Angeles police in connection with an alleged attempt to extort money from Philip Chancellor, wealthy social leader, has declared the charges were a "frame up". Dictaphone records of a conversation between McLaglen and Chancellor's secretary, revealed an attempt to extort $20,000 from Chancellor, police said.

MART TO PROBE 'SHORT SELLING'

Speculators Face Possibility of New Restrictions as Result of Move.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Wall Street speculators faced the possibility of new restrictions today as a result of a New York stock exchange move to investigate "short selling."

The Twentieth Century Fund, independent foundation which the stock exchange has asked to conduct the inquiry, was already on record as opposed to some existing market practices untouched by the federal market control law.

It went so far as to recommend four years ago that so-called "bear raids"—"short sales of unusual size" in a single stock in one day—should be outlawed as creators of artificial price slumps.

Figures high in the stock exchange said they were aware of this, but promised serious consideration to any changes the fund may propose.

The findings of the new study, one prominent market figure declared, would "carry tremendous weight."

GETS JOB BACK

Mt. Vernon Glass Worker Ordered Returned To Post.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Lamb Glass company of Mt Vernon, O., was ordered today by the National Labor Relations board to reinstate with back pay Leo Lewis, discharged last May 5. The board held that Lewis was dismissed for activity in a local union connected with the CIO-Affiliated Federation of Flat Glass Workers.

NAZIS REFUSE

Germany Won't Take Part In Sino-Jap Peace Parley.

BERLIN—(U P)—Germany today refused an invitation to participate in next week's conference on the Chinese-Japanese war on the ground that she was not a signator to the nine-power treaty under which the meeting was called. Thus Germany joined her anti-communist ally Japan in boycotting the conference.

It was announced officially that, responding to the invitation of the Belgian government, the German Nazi government declined to take part in the far eastern conference.

However, the refusal was tempered by an expression of readiness to participate in any practical measures for pacification which nations might decide upon.

'The State Vs. Elna Jepson,' New Serial, Begins on Page 8

A strange "murder case" in which there is no murder, and a girl is released not because she is innocent but because the jury can't agree that she's guilty, is told in "The State versus Elna Jepson," a new serial which begins on Page 8 of today's News-Journal.

It was written by Nancy Barr Mavity who is the author of a number of mystery stories. Her latest story is no mystery—but the reader is kept in suspense as to how an innocent woman will prove her innocence.

The story begins when Elna Jepson, alone in her home with the man she loves and his wife, is enmeshed in strange circumstances when the wife, faints, falls forward, and striking her head on a table, dies from a severe blow on the head.

The husband and Elna, facing each other, know that police will never believe the truth, and between them they arrange a plausible story with no triangle theme in it.

The story tells of the interesting psychology which forces a girl to follow the dictates of loyalty, even though she knows it is the wrong way, and the difficult way.

The romantic element in the story does not take the stereotyped turnings of such stories, and the man who influences her destiny is not the one who stands at her side throughout her trail. The courtroom scenes are handled in a manner to hold the reader's undivided attention.

On the Campaign Front ---

PRAISES BIERLY, G.O.P. CAMPAIGN

Congressman White Points to Need of Strong Local Units In Rally at Church.

Praising Glenn L. Bierly, Republican candidate for mayor, for his "clean campaign and his presentation of a definite program to the people of Mansfield," Dudley A. White, Norwalk, congressman from the 13th district, last night urged Republicans to build a strong national organization by first giving strength to the local units, in a talk at a rally at the First M. E. church.

"If you want to build party principle, there is no place better than in your own community which is the basis of the national governmental structure," he declared. "The Republicans at this time have a greater responsibility than ever, one that requires a clean, constructive program such as your candidate (Bierly) has proposed. We need character more than anything else in public office today, and I know he has that necessary qualification."

Bierly's activities in the Ameri-

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley today estimated Ohio 1937 tax collections at $325,000,000, an increase of $54,000,000 over 1936.

Unemployment compensation premiums, which will not be drawn on for benefits until 1939, made up $40,273,2111 of the increase.

Cigaret, gasoline and liquor taxes were expected to produce revenues totaling more than $8,000,000 above last year. Smaller increases were noted in other levies.

CONGRESS PROBE SEEN ON A. T. & T.

Monopoly Investigation Expected To Lead To Drastic Legislation.

WASHINGTON—(U P)—The federal communications commission's investigation of charges that the $5,000,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph company constitutes a monopoly, was expected today to result in recommendations to congress for drastic regulation of the vast concern.

The commission has announced that its report and recommendations will be ready when the regular session of congress meets in January.

The report may recommend several possible courses of action to control operations between the A. T & T. Co. and the Western Electric company, whose stock, it was found, was 99 7 per cent owned by the former.

STATE RESTS CASE IN HAHN MURDER TRIAL

Defense Indicates It'll Ask Delay For Time to Arrange Testimony For Blond.

HEARS 95 WITNESSES

Jury Told by Crime Expert Woman Forged Check, Drew Will of Aged Man.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The state rested today its murder-by-poison case against Anna Marie Hahn.

Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt announced conclusion of state testimony as court convened shortly after 10 o'clock but was momentarily balked when Judge Charles S. Bell declared the defense wished to recall two witnesses.

Withdraws Request.

Chief Defense Counsel Joseph Hoodin said however, that he could not recollect who he had in mind and withdrew the request.

Judge Bell then granted Outcalt's motion.

Mrs. Hahn is on trial charged with the death of Jacob Wagner, 78, but circumstances in the deaths of four other lonely old men has been admitted as "corollary evidence."

Listed as the last in a parade of 95 state witnesses, Mrs. Katherine Keeler, of Northwestern university's crime detection laboratory testified yesterday that Mrs. Hahn forged Wagner's name to a $1,000 check, wrote and signed his purported will in her own favor and inscribed for herself a full power-of-attorney.

"I haven't the slighest idea in the world what the defense will be," asserted Joseph H. Hoodin, chief of Mrs. Hahn's counsel, but indicated he might seek the aid of former Judge Arthur C. Fricke and William A. Thorndyke, veteran of many sensational murder trials.

Will Seek Delay.

Hoodin said he would ask a directed acquittal and, that motion denied, next requesting a delay to arrange defense strategy.

He declined comment on whether Mrs Hahn would testify but said he expected to summon only a few witnesses, indicating the trial now ending its third week would reach the jury within next week.

AFTER SPEED

U. S. Navy to Build 'Suicide' Raiders, Scouting Craft.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States navy is preparing to follow the lead of foreign fleets in developing small, lightning-fast "suicide" raiders and scouting craft.

Details remain to be worked out, navy officials said today. They declined to amplify a disclosure by Assistant Secretary Charles Edison that two experimental boats, designed to attain speeds up to 59 miles an hour, are planned.

The expected speed would be greater than that reported for any of the similar craft developed by Italy, Great Britain and Germany, whose navies have experimented with 'suicide" ships since World War days.

DEALERS, UNION CONFER AGAIN ON COAL DEADLOCK

Head of Drivers Asserts 'We'll Show City Something' If Ageement Isn't Reached; Threatens to Cut Off All Coal Deliveries In City.

A "final" meeting in Mansfield's three-day-old coal strike is scheduled for tonight.

That was the word of Joseph Huntsman, business agent for the drivers' union, as he and other union officials concluded a second conference with coal dealers at 1 p. m. today, with settlement apparently farther away than ever.

The meeting, the second since yesterday afternoon, was held at Trades Council hall. It started at 10 a. m., and concluded three hours later.

Four dealers were present—M. H. Harrah, of the H. and H. Coal company; Kent Rummel of the Kent Rummel Coal company; R. O. Davies, of Kallmerten and Baer, and Clyde Estes, of the Estes Coal company.

As they left the meeting, each said, tersely, "Nothing to say."

Huntsman said "We got exactly nowhere."

After asserting that "tonight's meeting will be the last one," Huntsman went on:

"Unless an agreement is reached tonight, we'll show Mansfield something it has never seen before."

Asked to amplify that statement, he said the first move would be to close all coal supply companies "tight" and permit not a lump of coal to be delivered. The union has been permitting delivery of no more than a ton to residences where fuel supplies are exhausted.

Points to Union Support.

Further than that, he would not comment, other than to point out that his union, the International Union of Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers, had been voted the support of other unions in the city.

Asked if that might mean he was considering the feasibility of calling a sympathy strike of other unions in an attempt to win a contract with the city's 28 coal dealers, Huntsman said "that all depends on what happens tonight."

The union has been seeking a contract calling for a closed shop, higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions, including the "check-off" system of paying union dues. Union officials say dealers refused to confer with them, and called their strike Wednesday, after they had blockaded four companies Tuesday and prevented delivery of coal.

At tonight's meeting, it is planned to have all 28 coal dealers represented in the "final" attempt to reach a basis for settlement of the dispute.

The atmosphere at the close of

PRANKSTERS TO LAND IN JAIL

Chief Orders Police to Hold 'Bad Actors' Over Night as Complaints Increase.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates had fight in his eyes today when he issued orders that Halloween pranksters picked up tonight on complaint of irate citizens were to be placed in city jail until morning and turned over to juvenile authorities in the morning.

The order was the result of depredations last night which went far beyond the classification of "pranks," he said. One of the more serious ones was the removing of red danger lights from the barricade of barrels at Marion and Glessner avenue. Arthur Gamertsfelder, Fostoria, told police that he ran into an unlighted barricade and mashed the front end of his car.

Other depredations included throwing bricks through windows and theft of equipment from properties. One man came to police headquarters with the inside of his car and his suit covered with flour.

Police were kept busy last night answering calls. About 90 per cent of the complaints, according to Service Director Philip Wolfe came from the west and southwest sections of the city.

In several instances boys have been caught and have been turned over to their parents by police, Chief Bates said, but tonight they will be taken to jail and their parents notified.

Last night brought the peak for complaints against Halloween activities.

Tonight's The Night — Spooks Goblins, Witches To Parade

Tonight's the night for the spooks and spirits to make their appearance, the witches to ride brooms, the goblins to howl, the public in general to have a lot of fun, and for most anything to happen.

It's the night for Mansfield's big community downtown Halloween festival and parade, which is scheduled to get under way at 7 p. m. and continue until —?

Everything's all set for the big "doin's" and according to Donald Cram, Y. M. C. A. physical director, and chairman of the festival, one of the largest gatherings of children to take part in a masked parade, is expected to parade through the downtown business section in costume.

Forming on Sturges avenue at 6:30 p. m., the parade will get under way at 7 and will include a "costume group," in which prizes will be given to the boys and girls who dress up in the most beautiful or most comic costumes, or give the best impersonations of male or female characters.

Then there will be the float section, bicycle section, and a section in which members of the school boy patrol will march. Some 130 prizes will be awarded to first, second and third place winners in each of the 10 divisions of the parade.

Heading the line of march will be the Senior high school band and girls' bugle and drum corps. Other musical organizations will be a 35-piece accordion band from Smart's Studio, and several German clown bands.

The Y.M.C.A. and the Diemer Canfield gasoline stations are sponsoring the event.

STOCK LEADERS EXTEND RALLY IN BRISK MART

Respond Further to Reduction In Margins, Up Three or More Points.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Further response to the reduction in margins was made by leading stocks in today's market, many extending yesterday's upturn by as much as 3 or more points.

Outstanding on the push were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Crucible, National Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Standard Oil of N. J., American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, American Smelting, American Locomotive, Philip Morris, Union Carbide, Allis Chalmers, Columbian Carbon, Briggs Mfg., J. I. Case and Deere.

American securities were higher in foreign markets. Bonds leaned forward but commodities were a trifle uneven.

Week-end trade reviews sounded a cheerful note, with Dun & Bradstreet placing retail sales for the county as a whole at from 2 to 5 per cent ahead of the previous week and from 5 to 15 per cent above the same time a year ago.

It was noted, though, that part of the enlarged turnover was attributed to promotions which featured price reductions. In wholesale divisions the forward movement was found less hesitant, with replacement orders expanding.

A hopeful sign was seen in figures of the Engineering News Record which estimated this week's construction awards at 43 per cent over the week before and 40 per cent better than the aggregate in the comparable 1936 period.

'FINAL' PARLEY IN COAL STRIKE SET FOR TONIGHT

Union Head Promises to 'Show City Something' If Agreement Isn't Reached.

this morning's meeting was less hopeful by far than at the close of a six-hour session yesterday afternoon and evening at the Southern hotel.

When yesterday's parley broke up, both sides said they felt they had "gotten some place" and that negotiations had been carried on in a friendly spirit.

Comment after this morning's Trades Council session was terse and carried no intimation that the situation was bright.

Representing the union at this morning's meeting were Huntsman, Jack DePue, secretary of No. 40, Clint Berry, and O. C. Schindler, vice president of No. 40. These four make up the union's negotiating committee.

Meanwhile, more than 50 non-union drivers met this morning at City building with Mayor Earl A. McFarland, Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe and Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

City officials said these men had told them that they were satisfied with conditions as they are at present, and wanted to go back to work.

Claims Only 13 In Union.

Chief Bates said the group had given him figures on the number of union and non-union men employed in Mansfield coal yards and that their figures showed 46 non-union men employed in 15 companies represented at the meeting, while the union had a membership of only 13 in those same companies.

Huntsman said he could not confirm or deny these figures until he had checked the union's membership lists.

After the City building meeting ended, Mayor McFarland said he believed the men had a right to return to work if they wanted to, but would not indicate what the administration's policy would be if negotiations between the dealers and the union fail.

Bates said he had no comment to make on the situation at present. Director Wolfe, however, expressed himself as in favor of permitting men to return to work if they wished, while negotiations for a settlement are in progress.

"At the present time, I am not making an issue of the union or non-union phase of the situation, but I am in favor of the men being permitted to return to their jobs, and the dealers being permitted to operate in a normal manner until a settlement is reached.

Non-Union Names Committee.

Following their conference with the three city officials, non-union drivers gathered in municipal courtroom to appoint a committee to meet with Huntsman, other union leaders and city officials to attempt to effect a peaceable settlement.

Supervised delivery of coal to homes where supplies have been exhausted was being continued this morning, a check of dealers showed today.

Union officials and coal dealers conferred for six hours yesterday, interrupting their negotiations for supper, but failed to reach an agreement on procedure. However, both sides reported that they hoped to effect a settlement, and said negotiations had been friendly.

Turn Back Driver.

Union pickets turned back a driver who had brought a load of coal to the Estes yard last night. Arriving about midnight, and professing, according to police who were called to the scene, that he had not known of the strike situation, the driver was told by pickets that he could not unload the coal.

With pickets aboard his truck, he left for home. Police Capt. John Miller, who went to the Estes yard, said the man claimed to have been a steel truck driver, who occasionally brought a load of coal from Ohio mines to the Estes yard, when he was in the vicinity of the mines and confronted with a trip to Mansfield with an empty truck.

After the situation had been explained to him by pickets and Huntsman, who was summoned from his home, the driver agreed to leave without attempting to unload his truck.

Ban Deliveries By One Yard.

It was learned shortly after noon today that the union had told officials of the Voegele company that they would prevent any further deliveries of any kind from their yard, prohibiting even one-ton deliveries to homes without fuel.

It was reported, though confirmation could not be obtained from union officials, that a Voegele truck had delivered more than one ton of coal to a downtown department store, and that pickets had told company officials they would permit no more coal to go out.

Edwin W. Wagner, assistant manager, said at noon that the company had "made no attempt to deliver coal for the past two hours."

He said a picket had told him "you've got to cut it out."

Municipal court late yesterday set Wednesday, Nov. 3, as the date to hear the assault and battery charge preferred against Frank Glasgow, proprietor of the Direct Coal and Supply company. The charge was preferred by Lorenzo Wade, driver for the Rummel Coal company, following an altercation in Glasgow's office. Wade charges that Glasgow struck him. Glasgow denies this, asserting that the discussion was over a personal matter, and that he merely pushed Wade out of the office.

At Thursday Meeting.

Representing the coal dealers at Thursday afternoon's parley were Harrah, Davies and Rummel. The union was represented by Huntsman and Paul LaVo, Akron, secretary of the joint council of the International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers.

An air of optimism prevailed among union leaders and company officials after they emerged from their four-hour session.

LaVo said, "I believe we have gotten somewhere and I look for an early settlement."

He said he had been called here by Huntsman to sit in on the meeting for the purpose of clarifying some of the points in the agreement.

"We do not consider them demands," he said, "it is a working agreement that will bring about a closer relationship between the employer and employe for the benefit of both parties concerned."

Won't Agree to Truce Plan.

While none of the articles in the agreement were agreed upon, Harrah said after the meeting, "we made good headway and I hope for an early settlement."

Harrah added that the dealers had asked the union that a truce be declared for ten days while the dealers got together to talk over their prices and in the meantime that the pickets be withdrawn. The union was to give its answer to that proposal today.

Harrah said he had been advised, however, that the answer would be "no," and added the union negotiators at that time also threatened to tighten their blockade and permit no delivery of coal to be made anywhere in the city. Huntsman confirmed this before today's meeting but added "we had very friendly relations during the conference."

The strike, which tied up delivery of coal and building supplies as well by 28 companies, and kept about 100 men idle, started Wednesday, after a blockade Tuesday had halted deliveries by four companies — Kallmerten and Baer, Voegele, Kent Rummel and M. L. Branyan and Bros. company.

Union officials charged that the companies had refused to negotiate a working agreement with them, calling for increased wages and involving working conditions and hours.

The union's agreement was submitted to dealers at a meeting Wednesday evening, arranged by city officials, and was first discussed at yesterday's lengthy session.

Although the union claimed to have tied up coal delivery effectively, it permitted delivery to homes whose fuel bins were empty, after that condition had been ascertained by union pickets. However, they agreed to permit delivery of no more than a ton of coal.

The union had said it would not interfere with delivery of coal to hospitals, schools or other places where heat is a prime necessity, but school and hospital authorities said they were not in immediate need of coal.

DEMOCRATS TO WIND UP DRIVE

Rally Tonight at Courthouse Last City-wide Meeting; Brucker, Beach Speak.

hold no more meetings outside the headquarters, Campaign Manager Beach said. Fred Miller, fifth ward council candidate, will be host at the Monday night meeting.

A large crowd of the city's colored voters heard a talk at Tillman's hall last night by Thomas J. Davis, Cleveland, president of the Ohio State Democratic league, in which he said colored voters in Mansfield, as well as in the state and nation, owe their support to the Democratic ticket.

He pointed to the naming of a colored member to the Ohio parole board by Gov. Martin L. Davey and the recognition shown the colored race by President Roosevelt.

"The Democratic party in recent years," he said, "has shown that it is interested in the colored voters by giving them an equal chance with others when there were appointments to be made."

Claude M. Hunter, Democratic mayoralty nominee, spoke in behalf of the Democratic ticket, stating that it represents the party's platform in the municipal campaign. He repeated his statement made at a rally at Prospect school Wednesday night in which he said the party is presenting a record of merit and achievement rather than promises to the voters.

Arlin Announces Again As KDKA Marks Birthday

The voice of H. W. Arlin of Mansfield, the first regularly employed radio announcer in the United States, will go on the air again Saturday afternoon, just 17 years after it was first heard from Station KDKA at Pittsburgh.

Arlin, now supervisor of industrial relations at the Mansfield Westinghouse plant and president of the Mansfield board of education, will handle a part of the announcing assignment on the occasion of KDKA's 17th anniversary and the dedication of a new 718-foot antenna at Saxonburg, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

Scheduled to go on the air over the NBC blue network at 2 p. m. Saturday, the special program will continue until 9 p. m. Arlin is expected to be heard about 4 p. m. from the scene of the dedication.

Before his retirement 12 years ago, Arlin announced for KDKA for five years, joining the station's staff in 1920. His voice was one of the most familiar in the early days of the radio and was heard in every civilized country. During his service as an announcer he introduced a number of celebrities, including Theodore Roosevelt, Marshal Foch, Lloyd George, Lillian Gish, and Priscilla Dean.

IT'S GETTING so that nowadays you must see a picture before you can tell who is the villain. Which is to say that some villains are going heroic and some heroes are showing up a little on the shady side. George Sanders who was the good for nothing husband of Madeliene Carroll in "Lloyds of London," was the hero of "Lancer Spy," and he will play the heroic lead opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "The Giant Swings." Cesar Romero, the dark mustashed villain of many pictures, emerges a hero in "Dangerously Yours." On the other hand, the gay Robert Montgomery was a very nasty person in "Night Must Fall," and the very likeable James Stewart showed himself a low character in "After The Thin Man." Fans are becoming more and more confused as to whom to admire and whom to hate.

Dramatic Highlight.

Two women facing each other in an underlying play of life and death is one of the dramatic highlights of "Back In Circulation," the Joan Blondell-Margaret Lindsay-Pat O'Brien picture at the Ohio. In her role of newspaper reporter for a metropolitan tabloid, Miss Blondell is responsible for bringing about the conviction of a woman on a charge of murder. Later, convinced that the condemned woman is innocent, she contrives to face the woman, break down her silence, and get the clue that leads to the truth. Regis Toomey also is in the cast of this newspaper drama.

Now He's an Editor.

In his recent pictures Joe E. Brown has portrayed a prize fighter, a bicycle rider, a tractor salesman, a circus performer, a fireman and a sailor. And in his latest picture, "Riding On Air," he goes in for newspaper work, portraying the character of Elmer Lane of Saturday Evening Post fame. Elmer is a newspaper editor in a small town, who sets out to capture an illusive perfume bandit who uses the airways to smuggle his contraband across the border. Florence Rice appears opposite Brown, providing necessary romantic interest.

Boots of Destiny.

A pair of handsome leather boots are the motivating theme in "Boots of Destiny" which brings Ken Maynard and his horse, Silver King, to the Majestic screen today and Saturday. In the heel of one of the boots is concealed the map of a ranch on which a treasure has been buried, and when the boots are given away by a drunken Mexican, the action centers around getting the boots back again. Murder, cattle rustling and romance enter into this Western. Frankie Darro and Charlotte Henry in "Young Dynamite" rounds out the two day bill.

Wagon Train Era.

The Texas Tornadoes, Tex Ritter's own cowboy orchestra, made up of Hollywood "cow hands" who are musical, is a feature of "Sing Cowboy, Sing" a drama of the wagon trail era of the West, currently showing at the Ritz. A fight between a wagon train and a band of Western outlaws sends the action away to a good start, and it ends in a similar episode, with Ritter and his companion riding to the rescue each time. A Jane Withers comedy, "Angel's Holiday," is the second feature.

686-Pound Man, Bride of 364 On Honeymoon.

LONDON—(U.P.)—The world's fattest man, Barney Worth, 21, and his 23-year-old wife, Joy, who is striving for the title of the world's fattest woman, have arrived in London on their honeymoon.

Barney, who was born in Cookstown, Queensland, weighs 686 pounds, is 5 feet 9 inches tall and 6 feet 3 inches around the middle. His bride at the moment weighs 364 pounds. She used to weigh 524 when she was in a circus as the "Fattest Girl in the World," and before she went on a slimming diet. Now that she wants to team with her husband she is putting on 9 pounds a week in an effort to regain her former weight. When Worth sailed from Capetown to England, he had to be taken aboard the ship by crane.

Candidates For School Board

ALVIN FANKHAUSER

DR. JOHN S. HATTERY

HAROLD W. ARLIN

PAUL R. SPENCER

Pictured above are four of the five candidates for three posts on the Mansfield city school board in next Tuesday's election. Three of them, Harold W. Arlin, Alvin Fankhauser and Dr. John S. Hattery, are now on the board and are seeking re-election, their candidacies being sponsored by the Mansfield Schools committee, composed of parents of pupils. The same group sponsored their candidacies four years ago. The other two candidates, Thomas Williams, whose picture was not available, and Paul R. Spencer, are running on a labor platform, and have the support of Labor's Non-Partisan league.

5 IN FIELD BUT SCHOOL BOARD CONTEST QUIET

Schools Committee Backs Trio Seeking Re-election; Other 2 Have Labor Support.

Mansfield voters will elect three board of education members Tuesday from a field of five candidates, three of them present members of the board.

Backed by the Mansfield Schools committee, the three incumbents, H. W. Arlin, A. H. Fankhauser and Dr. John S. Hattery, are candidates for re-election for four-year terms.

They are opposed by Thomas Williams and Paul R. Spencer who have the support of the Labor's Non-partisan league.

Committee Directs Campaign.

Arlin, Fankhauser and Hattery are making no bid of their own for the offices, leaving their campaign entirely in the hands of the Schools committee which also supported the two hold-over members, Harold Bruce and William C. Mead who, were elected in 1935.

Williams and Spencer, both employes of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, are reported to be actively campaigning for the posts.

Both are members of the Delano lodge of Steel Workers and Williams is former president of the organization. Spencer was a captain in the army during the World war and a member of the Earle McVey post, American Legion.

Arlin, now president of the board, and Fankhauser are with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, while Dr. sician and surgeon in Mansfield Hattery has been a practicing physfor the past 21 years.

TAKES TO TRAILER

Professor Buys One So He Can Meet Lecture Demands.

BERKELEY, Cal.—(U.P.)—The old Athenian school of peripatetic philosophers soon may be succeeded by the trailer school. Dean Guy S. Miliberry of the school of dentistry has been obliged to purchase a trailer to meet the constant demands made on him for lectures.

Sir Richard Steel once took a friend to a tavern; then together they wrote an article which the friend had to take out and sell to pay the bill.

Moral Issue in the Drink Problem

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic is the quarterly temperance lesson and is based on Rom. 13:12-14; I Cor. 6:9-11; Gal. 5:16-21, the Golden Text being Gal. 5:16, "Walk in the spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh."

THE DRINK problem is by no means a modern problem as may be seen in Paul's references to it in this lesson at Rome, Corinth and Galatia. Such modern devices as the automobile and industrial machinery may give added physical hazards to it, but in its moral and spiritual perils there is little change from age to age.

Its Attendant Ills.

The attendant social evils of intemperance should be seriously considered by any who are inclined to view lightly the problem of intemperance for Paul ... in debauchery and company ... and drunkenness ... and wantonness ... and lasciviousness" (Rom. Moffatt). Paul ... dissipation ... quarrelsomeness, drunkenness, revelry ... Paul ... drunkenness is ... his letter to ... Paul ... mistake about ... and our idea ... enjoy ... but ... PAM—Deductions! By A. W. Brewerton

GRA-CIOUS, COLONEL! THOSE AWFUL MEN PAID ME A COMPLIMENT? — WHY--

--WHY DIDN'T THEY JUST BUST IN ON YOU ALONE PUT A GUN ON YOU AND COMMAND YOU TO OPEN THE SAFE? - LOTS SIMPLIER THAN ALL THAT ROUNDABOUT WAY THEY DID IT! WHY DID THEY DO ALL THAT? I'LL TELL YOU — THEY WERE SHREWD — THEY SIZED YOU UP — THAT YOU WERE NOT THE KIND OF GIRL THEY COULD SCARE INTO DOING WHAT THEY WANTED — THAT THEY COULDN'T BE SURE OF GETTING THE SAFE OPEN THAT WAY — YOU MIGHT OUTWIT THEM — ANYTHING COULD HAPPEN — SEE?
(Copyright 1937 by A. W. Brewerton) (Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Office)
THIS OTHER WAY WAS SAFER — SURER! I THINK THEY PAID YOU A BIG COMPLIMENT, PAMELA — AND THEY WERE RIGHT!
WELL — WE THINK THE COLONEL WAS ABSOLUTELY CORRECT!
WHY, COLONEL — WHO WOULD EVER HAVE THOUGHT OF THAT — BUT YOU!

Ashlander Sues For Winnings on Horse Race Bets.

ASHLAND—Suit to recover $900 for horse race winnings with interest from Oct. 18, 1937, has been filed in common pleas court here by Henry Mattade against Clyde Viall, William Welty and Dorothea Garretson.

In his petition, Mattade avers that between July 15, 1937, and Oct. 18, 1937, he placed bets on horse races with Viall and Welty amounting to $400, and that from these investments he won $973.

He further cites that the two have refused to pay the winnings which the plaintiff has coming.

Mrs. Dorothea M. Garretson, prominent local woman has been made co-defendant in the suit for examplary damages.

The basis of the latter move is taken from the General Code of Ohio, section 5967, which states that any property holder or landlord, who rents premises on which gambling is allowed, is liable for examplary damages not to exceed $500.

NEW CHEMICAL COMBATS FLU, COMMON COLDS

Researcher Sees Possibility of Stamping Out Diseases With Powerful Potion.

NEW YORK—(UP)—Discovery of a powerful new chemical—a lead that may furnish medical science with the tool for stamping out influenza and the enigmatic common cold—has been announced by John N. Northrop of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

The chemical, described as a nucleo protein of definite composition, has the properties, Northrop said, of bacteriophage, the bacteria destroying agent normally present in man's intenstinal tract and blood stream.

The synthetic bacteriophage is extracted from killed staphylococcus, the germs that cause suppuration in abcesses and wounds.

Awarded Medal.

Northrop announced his discovery following the presentation to him of the Chandler medal of Columbia university for high distinction in chemical science. The medal was awarded for his "fundamental discoveries concerning bacteria, the constitution of proteins and the chemistry of digestion."

Explaining the potency of the new chemical, the scientist said that experiment showed that 1-10,000 000,000th of one milligram of the solution would destroy growing staphylococcus cultures.

He said the technique for producing the chemical already had reached the point where the researcher had a larger measure of control.

The death-dealing power of the bacteriophage comes from its potency in making sickness-bearing staphylococcus bateria "sick," he explained. This eventually destroys the disease germ.

If suitable bacteriophages with an enmity for specific bacteria can be perfected, it was said, medical scientists would then have a tool with which to combat the viruses that produce influenza, the common cold and other maladies believed caused by viruses.

"Well, sonny, how goes the war?" asked a patron, buying a paper. "Did the Japanese win today, or did you people?"

"Phooie on the war," said Joe. "I'm interested in football."

Police today were investigating a robbery at the Brownell Shoe store, 94 North Main street, reported by G. G. Eusey, manager.

RESTRICTION ON PARKING ASKED

East Fourth Street Residents File Petition With Council.

A request that city council set up parking restrictions on East Fourth street between Elm and Foster streets was filed with Council Clerk William J. Beer today by 22 Fourth street property owners.

They call the attention of council to present parking conditions on the street which they term "intolerable" to the occupants of the properties. The latter points out that at the present time there are no parking limitations on the street in that vicinity.

The petitioners ask for "suitable and proper time limitations on both sides of the street from Elm to Foster streets."

Giant Cottonwood Tree Got Start From Riding Whip

XENIA—(UP)—"Great oaks from little acorns grow." But on the J. M. Davidson farm, south of Xenia, is a gigantic cottonwood tree, exactly 100 years old, which goes the old proverb one better, having grown from a riding whip.

Harry L. Clark, Xenia historian, dug up the facts. In 1832, according to family legend, pioneer John McClellan brought his family from Wooster, O. to the present farm site. Five years later, one of his older sons, returning from a western trip on horseback, stuck a switch which he had been using as a riding whip, in the ground near a rail fence on the farm. There it took root and grew. Later a younger brother transplanted it in moist ground near the newly built burnt clay house, which still stands in an excellent state of preservation.

The trunk of the century old tree today measures six and one-half feet through and rises to a height of more than 100 feet. It's shade measures 100 feet in di-

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1937

Politicians denounce each other until people believe them, and so come to distrust all politicians.

The most flourishing lines of business in the world today are guns, bombs, bullets, poison gas, gas masks and hostile propaganda. Civilization marches on!

A recent defendant in traffic court told the judge that the six beers he had had were "inconsequential"—although he may not have kept the syllables in just that order.

Use Black Lead Pencil.

AS THE RESULT of experience in connection with the recount of ballots in an election contest two years ago, it appears that there are still some voters in Mansfield who do not know that the law requires use of a BLACK lead pencil in marking ballots.

In a number of instances at past elections ballots have been thrown out on account of being marked with a colored lead pencil or a fountain pen which the voter pulled from his pocket.

Reason for the requirement is to secure uniformity in the appearance of ballot-marks, so that no individual voter's ballot can be identified, thus assuring secrecy and also guarding against fraud or bribery

A BLACK lead pencil is provided in each voting booth—you'd better use it, and play safe.

Greater Speed Coming.

NEW POSSIBILITIES for speed fields are revealed by Dr. Gustav Egloff, research director for an oil company, addressing a meeting of engineers. Automobiles and airplanes will double their speed within ten years, he says.

This will be made possible by better oils and new, synthetic gasolines that will be twice as combustible as fuels now used. There can be cruising speeds of 150 miles an hour for autos and 500 miles for airplanes.

When the time comes, the speed will probably not seem any faster than 60 miles on the road and 200 in the air seem now. But we shall not make such road speed on any type of road now existing. It will presuppose the development of a national system of super-highways by passing or overpassing cities and towns, with grades and curves and connections all made smooth and gentle to a degree hardly imagined yet.

Grading Office-Seekers.

WOMEN," says the New York Times, "are the backbone of our public forum system. They are young in politics and hungry for education, and insist on thinking of an election campaigh in educational terms."

Where this is the situation, there are more serious debates between rival candidates for offices and fewer old-fashioned campaign speeches in hired halls. That should be a start toward finding and electing the better candidates.

In Westchester county, New York, the other day eighteen candidates for local offices spoke to a women's organization. Unknown to the speakers, the listening ladies were grading them on their efforts. Some received the highest mark—"O. K." Others received only an "N. G.," which meant they would not have the votes of the graders. Another mark, "T. W.," meaning "too windy," might have given pause to a smug orator if he had known of it.

A Job Without a Salary.

MEMBERSHIP on the Mansfield board of education signifies willingness to perform public service without compensation.

Supervising the operation of a public school system in a city the size of Mansfield is no small task. It involves a variety and volume of work which few people realize and which requires high capability, excellent judgment and sincere interest in child welfare.

Places on the board of education are not ordinarily sought by persons qualified to serve. There is no salary connected with the job—and usually little expression of public appreciation.

It therefore becomes a matter of finding the men who are willing to make the sacrifices involved, and inducing them to serve realizing that their only compensation will be a feeling of satisfaction in having performed an essential community service.

Mansfield has been fortunate, in the past, in the caliber of men who have consented to serve on its board of education. It is important that the same care in selection of school board members continues. Three are to be elected next Tuesday from a field of five candidates.

Railroads Make Safety Record.

DURING the first six months of 1937, American railroads carried 246,997,591 passengers—an increase of more than 10,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1936.

Not a single passenger on any railroad in the country lost their life in a train accident. In the same period of 1936, there were five fatalities.

It is a statistical fact that railroad fatalities both to passengers and workers have tended to steadily decline during years in which the speed and length of passenger and freight trains have steadily increased. Since 1923, for example, the frequency of accidents has dropped 61 per cent, though trains are 16 per cent longer and 15 per cent faster.

Weird First Name.

E. P. U. BRADY, a waiter in New Orleans, would never have had his argument with the Social Security Board if that body had not required him to write his full name on his identification card. Mr. Brady wrote it out—E Pluribus Unum Brady—and sent the card off to Washington.

The card came back, and with it a curt letter suggesting that he cut out the fooling. It took several postal interchanges to convince the clerical staff of the board that there was really such a name as E Pluribus Unum. The waiter's birth certificate and a personal affidavit were required in addition to the statement of his employer.

This incident seems worthy of mention, merely as evidence that parents sometimes do such things to helpless children.

WONDER WHAT THE NEIGHBORS THINK?

Italy Finds Ethiopia An Expensive Venture

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—In the early days of Mussolini's campaign in Ethiopia the Overseas Writers in Washinton entertained at one of their weekly luncheons a guest who knows that part of Africa very well, as not many Americans do.

At the luncheon's conclusion and after the visitor had made his speech, a luncheoneer who wanted a little fuller enlightenment put this question to the visitor:

"Do you believe the Italians really will succeed in effecting that grab?"

To which the guest replied:

"If they do it will serve 'em jolly well right."

AN EXPENSIVE MOUTHFUL

At the present juncture Washington diplomacy strongly inclines to the opinion that Italy is in process of being served "jolly well right."

With the Spanish situation urgently calling for Italian digestion, an unassimilated Ethiopia, from all indications, still is sticking chokingly in the Fascist craw.

Ethiopia has been gobbled, to be sure, but it doesn't pay. Contrariwise, it seems to have proved to be a tremendously expensive mouthful.

MUCH MONEY NEEDED

The Overseas Writers' guest made just this point.

Ethiopia, he agreed, potentially probably is very rich, but it is wholly undeveloped; vast sums must be poured into it in order to take anything out. And Italy, a poor country, hasn't the capital for initial investment. Nor can it borrow much. Its credit is bad. And Ethiopia is a weird place for foreign capital to pour its money into.

Besides, although the Ethiopians officially are licked, they continue fighting with exasperating informality. Italy, from all accounts needs as many men to KEEP the natives in subjection as it needed to conquer them to start with.

It is the old story:

Conquering a country is one thing. Policing it subsequently is different.

STRENGTH VITIATED

If Mussolini, starting in on Ethiopia, had foreseen that he would have Spain on his hands before he was through with Ethiopia, diplomats and military strategists surmise that he would have postponed Ethiopia.

But he did not foresee it.

Consequently his forces are spraddled out the entire length of the Mediterranean, from the Gibraltar strait to the Red sea. He has a fairly good navy, but not formidable enough for so long a line to defend, against England and France, allied against him.

IL DUCE AND HITLER

Of course Il Duce has depended on German support.

Herr Hitler, however, has small interest in the Mediterranean, upon which Signor Mussolini's hopes center. Neither has Signor Mussolini much interest in Herr Hitler's aspirations.

They appeared to be very friendly at their recent "gabfest" but it may have been only superficial.

Moreover, they have traditional intra-European conflicting aspirations.

IS THIS THE PLAN?

The peace program is:

"Get prospective allies, like Italy and Germany, to quarreling between themselves, and the more peace we'll get out of it."

In other words, we hope Hitler and Mussolini profoundly distrust one another. They do, too, or diplomacy entirely is mistaken. It is the assumption we are going on at all our European conferences.

Diplomacy is queer.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

With This Bread.

"Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed . . . And when the hour was come, He (Jesus) sat down and the twelve apostles with him . . . And He took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves . . . and He took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it and gave unto them, saying, This is my body, which is given for you: do this in remembrance of me."

* * *

TWILIGHT—and tomorrow he must die!

Oh, no, it was too soon!

There was so much to say . . . so much to preach of beauty and of truth, kindness and order, in a cruel world. So much to heal in this black hell of pain—

But now His time was up! Three short, cramped years to change the hearth of men—now He must leave it all to die on Calvary! Go out and be forgotten! His work undone—the gallant struggle wasted?

For a moment, because He was part man, that terror must have gripped Him. Then his courage woke. He would not let the story end with this . . . There must be some way to make men remember what He'd tried to tell . . . some way to still keep touch with those He'd left . . . some way to leave His mark upon their daily lives . . .

And then it came—the plan! Passover bread and wine—these symbols which the children sing about, should be the symbols of His sacrifice!

And so it was. When evening fell and they sat in that upper room the twelve and Christ, He told them that the parting hour had come. Now they must let the bread where He had laid it down. But though the body died, His spirit would remain. And they would find it . . .

Not in recall rites . . . nor sacred symbols . . . nor mysterious stirs

But in the plain and necessary stuff that fed their common need. The quiet contacts of the twilight hour . . . the simple chores of shop and field and home . . . shared wine and broken bread of daily life—these were the living body of his love; in these lay comfort, cleaning and fresh faith.

So, having spoken, He went out to die.

And, having taken, they went out to live.

We, too, are lonely and bewildered—you and I. We, too need something that will bring Him back . . . revive our faith . . . clean us of hate and fear . . . give us new strength to fight all ugliness. But where can we find such a source of life? We seek it in excitement, wealth and fame . . . only to turn away with empty hands—

And then, at last, we turn to common things—the things that heartened us when we were young, and kept us eager, confident and glad. And in these common things we find—the miracle:

The quiet contact of the twilight hour . . . the simple chores of shop and field and home . . . shared wine and broken bread of daily life—

THESE ARE THE LIVING BODY OF GOD'S LOVE.

IN THESE LIE COMFORT, CLEANING AND FRESH FAITH.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Why We Call It "Jack" Knife.

Peculiar it may seem that the clasp knife for the pocket should be called "jack" knife, peculiar but not capricious, no matter which of the versions alleged as the reason we believe.

"Jack" knife may be an abbreviation of "Jack-with-a-knife." Here "jack" is interpreted in the sense of "sheath" or "mechanical contrivance." These are only two of its manifold meanings which include "short" and "male," which also may contribute to this word picture.

Logical as this explanation appears, it is also urged that we have the term after such a knife originally manufactured by a famous French cutler of the Middle Ages, whose first name, Jacques, was Anglicised and applied to this particular product.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

Deflation Expected to Continue.

DEFLATION is expected to continue for a while by persons examining the economic situation.

The government has ceased spending more than it receives. Actually it has balanced its budget already, even though the figures may indicate a continuing deficit.

And private industry, probably through fright, has not taken up the slack.

As to the government: Its deficit this year will be two billion dollars less than last year's. That two billion dollars is removed from circulation; it ceases to inflate.

The budget is not out of balance the $700,000,000 indicated for this year, if another factor is taken into consideration: The government is in receipt of large sums from social security taxes. These sums are not put into circulation, but are invested in government bonds. The bonds purchased are kept in a separate account. They are bonds purchased by the government in the market and taken from circulation.

Banks which have sold government bonds have not expanded their loans. The contrary is true. Business refuses to borrow. A deflationary cycle is at hand—perhaps a minor one—until someone primes the pump again.

NOTHING LEARNED?

Some students of socio-economics are saying that nothing has been learned. Neither the New Dealers nor their opponents have got to fundamentals. The opponents assert that President Roosevelt frightens them with his social program—but would there be any more business if there were no social program or no Roosevelt?

Students of socio-economics see the program as a step toward easing the situation. But, they add, can there be any fundamental cure short of a complete evolution?

WHAT IS GAINED?

This school of socio-economists asks:

What is gained if a budget is balanced and possibly nine million persons are jobless and are hungry and are removed from the purchasing power of the nation?

What is gained if trade, internal and external, still is dependent on government doles or pump priming?

The chief thing is to provide that the entire population may share in the products of its own labor, and that the entire world may inter-change goods and resources and credits freely.

If a third of the citizens of a nation are cut out from participation in the earnings of that nation, then the entire body politic will collapse. There comes a day when even the wealth concentrated into a few hands will be worthless, for wealth is of use only insofar as it will produce goods to sell. And, if there is no place to sell, there will be no value to money. Wealth, in brief, is the product of labor. It means nothing to the nine million unemployed that the United States government has 12 billion dollars in gold in storage. The gold merely is so much metal until it can be used as tokens in interchange of trade.

Trade and labor are wealth.

INTERNATIONALLY

And, internationally, how can the wars and unrest be stopped—except by meeting the situation fundamentally?

And does that not mean nations must make of themselves a community of peoples, with trade and monetary restrictions removed—and with all nations having, equally, a free access through unrestricted trade to the resources their populations must have.

The roars against dictators and cruelties and wars will have no effect whatever until the economic causes that create dictators and wars are met realistically.

THE UNEMPLOYED

In the meantime, the unemployed will be worse off this winter than in several winters past. The government, in balancing its budget, is shifting its "burden" to the states and the counties and the cities—which are not meeting it.

The situation is best stated in "The New Republic," commenting on an unemployment survey made by Fortune, de luxe magazine which costs one dollar a copy:

"No single investigation has cost the magazine Fortune more money than the $12,000 study on unemployment just completed. Its conclusions, published in the October issue, are that workers on relief are not bums, that they have had little education, that they were not fired because they were unable to do their jobs, that they do not ask for too much help and that private industry has put about half of them back to work since 1935.

"The survey shows, in addition, that while there is now a shortage of skilled labor, there is an abundance of unskilled workers not employed by the WPA (which, Fortune attests, is performing efficiently).

"Finally, the investigation has shown that local communities are not doing so good a job in giving direct relief to the unemployables among the unemployed as the federal government did two years ago."

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Easy for Profits to Slip Away.

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities, Stanford University.

In controversies involving wages, hours, and working conditions it is often said that the demands of labor could be readily met were it not for the insistence of the employers upon profits. The implication seems to be that profits must be foregone if they stand in the way of the realization of labor's aims.

It is true that profits must often be foregone, perhaps for several years running; in fact, the very nature of profits as the residual share in distribution makes this result inevitable. But profits in the long run must be large enough to reimburse business men for the risks that they take. If profits are not forthcoming, there will be no incentive to take risks; and industry will languish, and unemployment increase.

The risks that business men take are very great. Usually there is a considerable time interval between the beginning of the productive process and its completion. For example, in the case of farming operations (farmers are business men, of course) seed must be sown, and cultivation carried on for several months, before the crop is ready for the harvest.

In the case of automobile manufacture though cars come off the assembly line on the same day that assembly starts, the assembly line is but the last link in a productive chain that embraces many processes and covers a long period of time.

The long time-interval associated with the round-about process of production adds greatly to the risks. At the outset land must be acquired and funds borrowed (unless indeed the business man has land and funds of his own), materials must be purchased, and labor must be employed. The business man assumes all these obligations, and hopes that the finished product will sell for a price sufficient to cover all his outlays, and leave him a surplus to reimburse him for the risks taken.

If all goes well there will be a surplus. But, alas, "there is many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip." The continuity of operations may be interrupted by a fire, a flood, a war or a strike, sit-down or old style. The cost of production may increase as the result of higher prices of materials or higher wages. The demand for the product may decline; indeed new inventions may destroy the enterprise. Taxes may increase, and burdensome regulations of one kind or another may be imposed by the government.

The burden of these risks falls principally on the business man because profits are the left-over share—the residue after all prior claimants have taken their shares. Wages, materials and supplies, interest on borrowed funds, rent, taxes, etc., must be paid, and it is only the residue, if any, that goes to the business man as a reward for the risks taken.

Unless the residue by and large, is adequate to compensate adequately for the risks, the funds required to finance productive operations will not be provided, and industry and employment will decline.

Timely Editorial

Justice Black's Dilemma.

In the Supreme Court decision not to review the Scottsboro case, Justice Hugo L. Black took no part, because he had once been a Klansman and also because, as former senator from Alabama, he had been active in state as well as national politics. So far, so good, and it was proper that he should have refrained from participation.

But it is unfortunate that any judge or justice, except where relatives or personal property interests might be involved, should find himself unable to hear a case exclusively on its merits, and not have to make either a formal or an implied apology for "sitting out."

The celebrated Thanatopsis of Bryant concludes with an injunction so to live that when one's summons comes to join the invisible caravan that moves toward death, grave, resurrection, etc., one may go to his rest as if approaching a couch to lie down to pleasant dreams, and not as the quarry slave, scourged to his dungeon. And this injunction might well be adapted to meet the conditions of those who seek public office, especially membership on the judiciary, that they so live that white robes and pillow-case head coverings rise not to mock them. —Columbus Dispatch.

THOUGHTS while strolling: Harpo Marx all cuts me like the village simpleton. At whom I never laughed. Molly Picon, the Ghetto's stage darling with the French aperitif last name. For prematurely snow-white hair none of the boulevardiers tops the old '39er, Harry Silvey.

My father's black porter, Hannibal, laughed precisely like Joe Penner. What the music world needs is another Victor Herbert, rest his soul. Louis Sobol has also become one of the fiends for dark-hued collars and shirts. Leslie Howard in glasses and you have our elevator boy.

Rhyme: To play an old hag in a garret, I'll take Shelia Barrett. The fulfillment of George M. Cohan's line, "He's a grand little guy": Burgess Meredith. For something neat in wax under glass: George Rector's mustache. Shot-out-of-a-gun walkers: Edwin Balmer, Major Bowes and Eddy Duchin.

To Jack Benny: Don't let them pretty you up that way in your next movie. You're all right as is. Theodore Dreiser moping along. A millionaire of the depression: Henry Luce, the publisher. Crack description of a certain Broadwayite: Always wrong at the top of his voice.

Most hilarious scene of the season: The legionnaires carrying Noel Coward in silk hat and all on their shoulders for a block and his: "That was not very funny" Then Graham McNamee's jape as Eddie Rickenbacker entered the subway: "There goes an ace in the hole!"

One of the mid-town oases for newspaper and magazine writers is Jack Bleeck's—pronounced Blake's—Writers and Artists club. It specializes in dark heavy brews, thick steaks and chops with giant spuds. And is its liveliest between 2 and 4 a. m. Among the diversions is a target practice at which rubber suction gadgets are fired from toy pistols, the revival of a Gay 90 innovation by Stanley Walker, one of the leading spirits of the place. Lucius Beebe also makes it a port of call sometime during the evening, top hat and all.

Bleeck's is the modern journalistic version of Doc Perry's—a drug store in the old World building whose room behind the prescription case offered sundry potions for hucking the reportorial rip tides. The Doc's customers were mostly drinkers of whiskey neat, although he could be persuaded to build up an old fashioned if in proper mood. Frank O'Malley did much to publicize the place in his roaming stories of the gas-lit days. Two of Doc's jovial patrons were Herb Swope's irrepressible, ink-stained journalistic twins, Joseph Jefferson O'Neill and Donald Henderson Clarke. When they went on the loose Swope always found them at Doc Perry's.

Now and then a poet at some tiny dot in the outland, is able to winnow a living sending in stuff at long range to the New York marts. There is, for instance, Miss Billy B. Booper, of Neodesha Kan., a hop skip from my birthplace, Plattsburg, Mo., who attains this recognition writing sonnets and such and about her neighbors, her Main street and sundry observations in a prairie town. She has appeared often in Good Housekeeping, Saturday Evening Post, the New York Times and nearly all the poetry magazines. Proving it can be done.

I have a letter from a reefer—marijuana—smoker, a jazz band musician who gives some interesting if depressing high lights on the habit. He has known but two women — cabaret entertainers, who smoke the weed. He says users refer to such smoking as "tea." The vendors are called "pads." The most potent part of the reefer is the last drag, and that is why users hold the butt with a pin or tweezers to get this wallop. The smoke, to get the right effect, must be held in the lungs as long as possible. The writer states that under the influence one is "high." And that the sensation may be best described as floaty. He admits that in a few months he has lost weight and feels good only when smoking. Unconsciously he sounds a warning and preaches a sermon with: "Like all the reefer smokers I know, I started just as an experiment to see what the stuff was like."

I have always liked Channing Pollock's story of the sailor who, asked what he had done with his wages, answered: "Part of it went for liquor, part of it for women and the rest I just frittered away foolishly."

LOOK, LISTEN, LIVE!

They thought they could beat the train to the crossing — but they didn't. Looks like they were to escape with their lives for the old car was ground up like a pound of hamburger. It's hard to realize the tremendous power of a locomotive. Before you drive over the tracks slow down, look carefully both ways and listen. It's a good plan to stop entirely before crossing. It takes only a few seconds more to insure safety. It's much better to stop, look, listen and be safe.

COUNTY DECIDES FATE OF 4 BOND ISSUES TUESDAY

Four Levies, One In Mansfield, Also Up For Decision of Voters Next Week.

The fate of four proposed bond issues in Richland county amounting to $245,000 and four levies, two of which are now in effect, will be decided in next Tuesday's election.

Shelby, Bellville and Butler voters will act on proposed issues to finance additions to their school buildings which it is contended were made necessary by the rural school consolidations last spring. At Shelby the proposed issue would raise $80,000 and at the Butler and Bellville $70,000 each.

In addition, the Shelby city council is submitting a bond issue for $25,000 for the repairing and enlarging of the city's storm sewers.

Shelby voters also will be asked to approve a one-half mill levy for five years for park improvements, and to adopt an initiative ordinance calling for the elimination of a grade crossing at the Big Four railroad on Smiley avenue.

Votes on 3-Mill Levy.

Approval of a three-mill levy which produces $6,209 annually will be asked by the Lexington board of education for school operating expenses. The levy, now in effect will be continued for a period of five years, if approved.

The Butler village council is asking for approval of a two-mill levy for current operating expenses.

Mansfield will act on the proposed renewal of a one-tenth mill levy for recreation purposes. The levy, which has been on the tax books for the past five years, produces about $4,000 a year for the maintenance of a summer playground program.

Although 37 Ohio counties will hold at least one local option election, the liquor question is not on the ballot in Richland.

The wet and dry issue will come up in this section of the state in Knox, Wayne, Lorain and Medina counties. Nine sub-divisions in Wayne county will vote on the sale of liquor and beer.

The public reaction to the sale of beer and liquors in the several counties will afford an accurate poll by which Ohio's administration of the liquor laws may be gauged, a United Press writer predicts.

In Akron, Columbus and Cincinnati, voters will be asked to approve special relief levies, and in Cuyahoga county a levy for relief needs, voted down in the primary, will be resubmitted Tuesday.

BARGAIN BUY

Minnesota Recalls Purchase of Land From Indians.

ST. PAUL—(U.P.)—Recent celebration of the 100th anniversary of what is called the foundation of the state of Minnesota recalls the bargain the white man drove with the Indians for a wedge of land between the St. Croix and Mississippi rivers.

The wedge was ceded to the United States by the Sioux in consideration for annuities of food, goods and miscellaneous provisions. In addition, the government took over outstanding debts of the Indians concerned.

This wedge was the first land in Minnesota to be opened to white settlement and is considered the "origin" of the state.

BIRTH RATE CUT

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(U.P.)—The Illinois birth rate fell more than 25 per cent during the 12-year period from 1925 to 1936 while the death rate remained approximately stationary. These facts are disclosed in a new bulletin on vital statistics in Illinois issued by the state health department.

28,000 KILLED

Traffic Fatalities Increase 9 Per Cent, Council Says.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The National Safety council has reported 28,140 persons died in traffic accidents during the first nine months of 1937, a 9 per cent increase over the total for the same period last year.

Despite the increase, the council noted "several favorable aspects" of the traffic situation. September was the second month in which no increase over 1936 was registered. The total for the month—3,550—represented a 10 per cent drop from August.

For the first time this year the increase in deaths for 1937 was less than the 10 per cent increase in motor traffic, the council said. The increase in deaths during the second and third quarters of 1937 was only 4 per cent over the same periods last year. During the first quarter it was 24 per cent.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

ELNA JEPSON surreptitiously glanced at her wrist watch.

The "Enigma Woman," of hundreds of pictures, hundreds of headlines, was waiting for the noon recess of her trial for murder—sitting quietly as usual, every feature schooled to quietness lest its utter hopelessness should be revealed.

Everything important, including the courtroom clock, seemed to be behind her. She dared not glance about. One of the special writers might notice and jot down a paragraph to the effect that the stolid "Enigma Woman" seemed bored by her own trial for life.

Suddenly Elna knew that she could not endure those remaining five minutes before noon. The time had come—predicted, eagerly awaited, by the press, by the crowd that made the courtroom stifling, by the prosecution—when she could bear no more, when the "Enigma Woman" would "break."

In another minute she would toss her chair to one side, whirl upon them all, scream the awful truth which no one would believe if she told it. Her hand crept upward from her lap to the arm of her chair. She might even change her plea to guilty. What would it matter? What could anything matter now, except to escape this reiterated nightmare?

For the first time, she was glad her father was dead. He had said, "Courage and kindness are the only two virtues." She had tried both, and both had failed her. He had been proud of her. He would not like this. Above some droning in the courtroom punctuated by the bailiff's gavel when the murmur rose too high, she heard a voice in remembered clearness, quoting the opening line of Landor's great quatrain: "I have striven with none, for none was worth my strife." She had smiled at her father's delight in the line, as soon as she was old enough to realize that he had fought with most of the great architects in the country, and that Landor also had been a great fighter in his day.

She smiled now. It no longer mattered what the reporters made of that smile. This would be the end. But Oscar Jepson would have met it differently. He would never know that she had failed him, in courage, failed in his pride. In death, he was beyond disappointment.

She had half risen from her chair when the familiar voice of the white-haired, pleasant-faced judge intoned

"The court will now take a recess until 2 o'clock. Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I again admonish you not to discuss the case either among yourselves or with others until it is finally submitted to you."

It was three minutes before 12 o'clock. She had lost her chance. The clerk of the court slid a slip of paper across the table in her direction as the judge left the bench.

"Don't," the anonymous scribble ran. "I knew and admired your father. This is without any prejudice as to your guilt or innocence. But for his sake, don't do what you were about to do. You are your father's daughter."

Elna had only a minute to glance at the note and thrust it into her coat pocket. Her face was again calm. Her lips moved soundlessly. "I have striven with none, for none was worth my strife."

By that three-minute advance, she must go through another recess. Go through it as if she were proud and indifferent.

The reporters leaped over the railing, ignoring her. They wanted the lawyers to give them the next witnesses. Elna Jepson, on trial for murder, knew what would happen next, and it happened.

The crowd, as she was led from the courtroom to the jail, talked of her as if she were an inanimate image. Two women were close behind her.

"Haven't you heard," one of them said, "That they give her dope every day? That's why she keeps so calm."

"No, really?" the other answered. "Well, I've heard that the jailer is in love with her, and all kinds of things go on—you know."

"Any hussy who is pretty enough can get away with murder," a voice from another group broke in. "I've seen her with my own eyes, smoking cigarets from the jail window."

The crowd was against her. She knew that. She steeled her face against them, remembering the childhood line again, "for none was worth my strife."

The newspapermen and camera men swarmed about her, chatting as if she did not exist. It was a short distance from the courtroom to the jail, but those few yards were harder to bear than all the court proceedings on which her life depended.

There had been so many pictures—so many. She allowed them because she knew these men must earn their livings. They could not help it, and what could it matter? They would live on, whatever happened to her. It seemed a small act of kindness—meaningless.

She learned the meaning later. One of the special writers, who are modern substitutes of sob sisters, used the mechanical smile as a text for a story called "Laughing at Death." Others, using the poses she had assumed by order, bewildered by the anonymous voices, blinded by flashlight after flashlight, accused her of 'publicity seeking.' One such article had begun, "Most murderers shrink." Elna had managed a quirk of the eyebrow at that one—it so carefully, by its generality, avoided libel. But it carried its point.

Such stories had turned the crowd to a mass belief in her guilt, she knew. They had made her short trip from the courtroom to jail, where the crowd gathered, a nightmare. She wished the judge had not advanced noon recess by three minutes today.

She clutched the anonymous note in her coat pocket, lifted her chin, pretended not to hear.

It had been a poor morning for trial pictures. One of the lounging cameramen jibed: "Why not take another picture of the 'Enigma Woman' on her way? That would be original anyhow."

"Ah, shut up!" Elna recognized the gruff voice of a reporter named James. "What do you think you are—inquisition experts?"

"Everybody knows James is sweet on the dame—look at his stories!"

"I happen to work for a national news service—we're not allowed to color the news. Hard on the imagination, but all I send has to be on the record," James answered.

Elna remembered James's stories. His by-line was the only one that carried straight news, sparing neither herself nor the prosecution. He was the only reporter in her carefully supervised interviews in her lawyer's presence who addressed her as Miss Jepson instead of making free with her first name. It was hard for Elna not to wince at these familiarities. From childhood she had had an almost fanatical feeling that her first name was her personal possession, a part of her self reserved, by her own gift, for her intimate friends.

She had remembered James, too, because he alone—he was on a local paper then, she thought—had brought decent understanding to his story of her father's death. He had taken no advantage of that decency to attempt any special beats when assigned to her trial for murder. But she had lost her right to comment on any of the stories about her. She had really forgotten him since that one story of her father until she saw him covering "The Jepson Murder Case," as it was called until more colorful designation had been discovered for it.

When those colorless, complete, impartial stories began to appear, she had one day impulsively scribbled a note: "Oscar Jepson would have thanked you." Immediately she tore it up, lest it seem a bid for favor instead of the thanks she meant it to be. Already she was far more afraid of the press, with its power of misinterpreting evidence by an adjective and influencing a public that would not have understood the evidence if it had listened, than of the jury itself.

Today, forcing herself not to hasten her steps, not to run to the jail that had become a haven, she passed the wrangling press group. Their changed attitude showed how little use it was to struggle longer. They believed her conviction so certain that they no longer pretended to cater to her, as they had done at first, when a pretty defendant, of a prominent family, looked a good defense bet.

She had made so many mistakes—every look, every gesture since that awful night, had been a mistake, it was a sin. She was inclined to agree with the verdict indicated by the newspapermen's attitude. Then why drag this on? If, quite calmly, without breaking, she changed her plea to guilty at the afternoon session, couldn't she ask to be sentenced at once? Wouldn't this long-drawn agony of self-control be over?

Steadily, her chin tilted, a tiny frown between her brows, she managed the few remaining steps to the jail. The jailer, a tubby, middle-aged man with features that seemed formed of half-melted tallow, unaccountably liked her. He even noticed the tightened lips, the tilted chin, the almost imperceptible frown.

"Hello, little lady," he greeted her as he swung the big cross-barred door open. He always called her "little lady," and Elna managed not to mind because of the friendliness behind the words. Oddly, although he did not attend court, he always took one look at her face and knew how the session had gone.

This time, as he swung the door shut, he drew his fat arm through hers.

"Take it easy," he said in his husky voice, "and never do nothin' till you've thought it over two days and a night. That's my advice."

Elna managed a responsive smile. She did not even object to the fat arm, knowing the impersonal, unconscious kindness that prompted the gesture.

"I don't care whether you done it or not, and I don't know—it's too deep for me. But you takes your trouble without squawking, and that's the kind I like," he had told her, shortly after her transference to the county jail. Elna had had reason then, and many times later, to observe that this illiterate jailer and her scholarly father had one trait in common—a delight in expressing opinion in the form of epigram.

It did not take Jamieson long to divine that he was probably the only person in town, whether they believed her innocent or guilty, who felt for Elna any friendliness. She was disliked because of her disdain of dramatics, which cheated her "public," relishing its first major murder trial in years. Her obvious indifference of others was labelled "high hat." Even her looks were against her, smacking of the aristocratic. Because no gossip—unless accusation of murder be called gossip — could be raised against her, it had to be invented, since, after all, her case was a major subject of conversation.

Jamieson knew that good-looking, aristocratic, calm-faced young women had committed murders before and that the "little lady" might just as well have committed this one. But the emotional antagonism against her annoyed him. It annoyed him because he had a habit, disliked by his wife, of nursing wounded dogs found on the street, and taking in thin strays until at times Mrs. Jamieson, with acerbity, referred to their cottage as the "menagerie." One of those dogs had died in pain without a whimper, but in its eyes a mingling of bewilderment and bravery. Elna reminded him of that dog. She did not cry at all, not even at night. The matron had told him that, calling her "a hard one."

Thus arose the strange friendship between them. Jamieson gave Elna a large cell without companions. He intimated that she might have visitors out of hours if she wished.

"That's nice of you," she said, "but how did you know I like to be alone?"

"Because you remind me of a sick dog I had once," Jamieson answered honestly. "It was like that."

Elna could not help bursting into spontaneous laughter, but from that moment she looked upon the fat, ignorant jailer as the first real human being she had recognized in months—and knew that he knew it. What she never did know was that the eyes of the dog he had nursed caused him to glance into her eyes at the end of each court session. He himself would have been unable to explain how that unreasonable and invented resemblance gave him the clue to the trend of proceedings as they affected the defendant.

"But I shan't have any visitors, except, of course, my attorneys," she answered his second offer.

Jamieson, a jovial soul, thought it easier to be on trial for murder than to expect no visitors. He had had extensive experience with the former situation, but none with the latter. He watched, and what she said was true. Then, at off hours, when court was not in session, he took to visiting her cell, with the door open and the matron just outside as chaperon.

Elna learned all about the minor trials of married life with Mrs. Jamieson, her sharp tongue offset by excellent cookery, her objection to the menagerie and his masculine triumph at winning that war. She learned all the inside politics of the county, which, though apparently clear to Jamieson and interlarded with first names, seemed extremely complex to Elna. She learned more about her own trial than the courtroom taught her. For instance, the janitor entertained a violent antipathy for the "press gang," who stamped out cigarets, leaving stains on the linoleum, and left burnt-out flash globes for the janitor to pick up after hours.

"But surely the janitor could tell the bailiff, and the bailiff could order the pressmen not to do it," she suggested. She could smile to Jamieson. It seemed rather funny to take an interest in the comforts of attaches in the courtroom of her own trial.

"Little Lady," Jamieson answered, "the janitor and that bailiff ain't been on speaking terms for twenty years."

She knew that these visits were meant to interest her. They did. They showed her things she had never known. They made it easier for her to sleep without saying over and over: "It does not matter—I must not cry—it does not matter."

* * *

Never once had Jamieson questioned her in any way. Never once had he quizzed her, either directly or indirectly, as to her guilt or innocence. When he left, he always had to hoist himself with fat hands on elephantine legs. She would leave him some message if she were convicted, if she pleaded guilty today. He was the only person she could think of who would not care whether she were a killer or not; he was the only person she could think of now as a friend.

At the bottom of the steps today Jamieson paused again.

"Take it easy," he repeated. "The trouble with you, little lady, is you ain't got no common sense."

"I suppose not," Elna answered. "I once thought I could get away with something else."

"You and me both, maybe. I lost my job two terms because I ran an honest campaign. But remember. Wait."

Elna mounted the narrow, crooked stairs leading to her cell.

"You're pretty late," the matron sneered.

In that instant Elna realized the origin of the scandal she had overheard concerning herself and the jailer whose kindness made her one of his "menageries." The matron had been within earshot of every word. She had twisted those words. Jamieson was up for the next election—a clean election. Those twisted words would certainly hurt his wife, possibly cost him his job. And this would be her gratitude to a friend. Briefly she recalled the scandal as to smuggled dope, and wondered who had pointed out her smoking—wondered, and knew.

Her face was deadly white with contempt as she faced the matron on the narrow stairs.

NAMES FIVE TO VISITING BOARD

Judge Anderson Re-appoints Sixth and Only Remaining Member of County Group.

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson today announced the appointment of five new members to the county visiting board and the reappointment of a sixth.

Membership of the board had dwindled to one as the result of deaths and resignations and its activities have been limited in recent months, Judge Anderson said.

Members, appointed for terms ranging from two to six years, are Mrs. E. F. Cleland, Gustav A. Baer, Mrs. E. M. Olin, Charles Beelman, Mrs. H. H. Schettler and W. V. Kershner. Mrs. Cleland, only member who previously served on the board, was reappointed for six years.

Kershner and Baer were named for two-year terms, Mrs. Olin and Mrs. Schettler for four years and Beelman for six years.

Board members, who serve without pay, make an annual inspection of county institutions and all jails in the county.

PRAISES BIERLY, G.O.P. CAMPAIGN

can Legion, which White described as "the organization that expresses the ideals of America itself," were emphasized.

"What finer thing could one ask of a candidate than to be identified with the principles you want to give expression to in your community?" he asked.

"There must be a dearth of issues in this campaign so far as the opposition is concerned," he commented, "since I have learned tonight that even I am an issue. I am told the story has been started that I am unfriendly to labor, but I am ready to challenge anybody to point to one instance when I cast a vote that was contrary to the interests of the laboring man.

"Anyway, you'd have to travel at least 45 miles out of Mansfield to make me an issue in this campaign. If that's the kind of poppycock the opposition is shooting, then you should work twice as hard to win this fight," he said.

"The clean and constructive campaign the party is waging here is one of the best things that can happen at a time when people apparently are losing interest in government because of the black stigma politics has attached to its functions," White asserted. "Politics here or any place is as good as the people who participate in it, and it is time the people did something to combat the spread of uninformed mass voting."

Discusses Security Act.

Discussing the national picture, White said he saw in the social security act a possibility for service to the public and added that he believed the Republicans here or in any other locality would be unwise to convey the idea they are against it.

"Instead of heaping criticism on the law, it is our duty to put it in condition to serve its best purpose," he asserted. "It is here to stay, but there are glaring defects in its set-up that should be corrected."

He pointed to the fact that the funds now being paid in by workers and employers are going into the general fund for current governmental expenses, instead of into a special fund for payment of obligations under the act when they come due.

"The $916,000,000 already taken in has been replaced with IOU'S to the people, and unless something is done to set aside money for payment of obligations, the nation will either have to borrow more or levy new taxes when the bills come due," White stated. He advocated that legislation suggested by the G. O. P minority be adopted to correct the fault.

Introduced by Carlton S. Fernyak, C. O P executive chairman and toastmaster at the dinner, Bierly said, "We have approached this campaign positively, not in a negative, destructive manner because Mansfield needs a positive approach and not a tearing down of the fundamentals of good government. This is not a matter of ballyhoo and mud-slinging."

Fernyak advanced the campaign slogan, "Vote for Party with a Platform," asserting that, "with election only four days away, the opposition has given the public no plan, nor program, or indication of what they would do if elected. The people of Mansfield," he said, "have a right to know what candidates seeking office would do if given the responsibility of handling the city's affairs.

Candidates were introduced and spoke briefly at the dinner meeting which climaxed the G. O P campaign. More than 200 attended the session.

Republicans will wind up their drive for votes with ward meetings tonight and Saturday night at campaign headquarters in the Walpark building.

FAVORS WORLD CHURCH COUNCIL

Disciples of Christ Church Approves Religious Proposal.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The international convention of the Disciples of Christ was on record today as favoring the proposal to form a world council of Christian churches, making this church the second great denominational body to officially approve the move.

The Protestant Episcopal church was the first to approve it, having done so at its triennial general convention in Cincinnati earlier this month.

Rev. Dr. Graham Frank, Dallas, Tex., general secretary of the international convention, was named to represent the Disciples at a meeting of a committee in Holland next May which will formulate plans for the organization of the World Council of Christian Churches.

GOTHAM NEARS END OF BITTER VOTE CAMPAIGN

Odds Go Up on LaGuardia In Mayoralty Race; Dewey to Lead Tammany Foe.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—One of New York City's most bitter municipal election campaigns neared an end today with the future of Tammany Hall at stake.

Candidates turned loose a flood of oratory at dozens of pep meetings and rallies in last-minute appeals for support at the polls next Tuesday.

Tammany staged its big rally last night at the Hippodrome, where 2,000 persons heard Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the Tammany-New Deal Democratic candidate for mayor, declare that a "red menace" threatens the city if Mayor F. H. LaGuardia is re-elected.

LaGuardia Cheered.

Eighteen thousand persons attended the American Labor party's meeting in Madison Square Garden and cheered LaGuardia and Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, anti-Tammany candidate for district attorney of New York (Manhattan). The American Labor party is dominated by the Committee for Industrial Organization but is supported also by many American Federation of Labor units.

Wall Street betting commissioners boosted odds on LaGuardia to 5 to 1 over Mahoney and established Dewey as an 8 to 5 choice over his Tammany opponent, Harold W. Hastings. Tammany leaders ridiculed newspaper canvasses and straw votes, which indicated the mayor's re-election by a substantial margin.

Victory for Mahoney was predicted by Senator Royal S. Copeland, anti-New Dealer, who was defeated in the primaries, and by Senator Robert F. Wagner, New Dealer, both of whom spoke at the Tammany rally.

HEAVY SHELBY VOTE EXPECTED

Bond Issues Add to Interest In This Year's Election to Be Held Tuesday.

SHELBY — One of the most spirited city campaigns of recent years is expected to be climaxed Tuesday at the election with the largest number of votes ever cast at the Shelby polls.

This city, under a charter form of government, has only non-partisan candidates. Two bond issues, one of $25,000 for improvement of the city storm sewers and the other of $80,000 for construction of a wing at Shelby high school, also a one-half mill levy for improvements for Seltzer park and a decision if a subway should be built at the West Smiley avenue crossing of the Big Four railroad, will appear on the ballot.

Candidates follow: Mayor, D. B. Young and S. D. Inscho; director of law, T. L. Lutz and W. R. Morris; director of finance, Bert Fix and C. P. Mohn; councilman-at-large, C. L. Imhoff and C. E. Morris; councilman first ward, Kenneth Roethlisberger and H. M. Sweet; second ward, C. A. Bell and Edgar Eckert; third ward, John Chew and R. R. Johnson; fourth ward, David Kinsell and C. W. Swanger.

Candidates for the Shelby board of education, three to be elected, included Dr. E. D. Dowds, L. N. Hoffman, Leon Smith, Carl Wentz and Ralph Bly.

O. S. R. Fugitive 18 Years Caught, But He's Not Wanted

A trusty who walked away from the Mansfield reformatory in 1919 and has had 18 years of freedom, was held in Dayton today for return to the institution, but records show he was dropped from the "wanted" list in 1932.

The fugitive, Harry L. Blessing, 54, was arrested in Dayton last night on an intoxication charge, Associated Press dispatches said. His identification as a reformatory fugitive was made by Inspector of Detectives O. E. Greger.

Blessing escaped after serving eight years of a one to 15 year sentence for horse stealing. He was sentenced in 1911.

Reformatory records show Blessing was dropped from the institution's roles five years ago, which, it was said, is the practice in most cases where the fugitive has served a major part of his sentence and has been free over a period of years.

Government Flees as Fascists Map Drive on Valencia

MINISTERS GO TO BARCELONA IN NEW SHIFT

Nationalists Plan Attack on 3 Fronts, Arrange Blockade of Eastern Coast.

HENDAYE, FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER —(U.P.)— The Loyalist government moved to Barcelona today in the face of a huge Nationalist offensive in eastern Spain.

Many important ministries already had been transferred but it was announced officially that the government would function from there, beginning tomorrow.

The transfer was arranged simultaneously with Nationalist plans for an attack in eastern Spain at three points—along the Franco-Spanish frontier, immediately south of Barcelona and directly at Madrid and Valencia.

Plan Blockade.

In addition, the Nationalists mapped out a program to blockade the eastern Spanish coast from the French frontier to Almeria, below Valencia. Vice Admiral Francesco Moreno Fernandez, commander of the Nationalist navy, arrived at Palma, Majorca, and took command of the sea, land and air forces in the Balearic islands.

Some quarters suggested that his arrival was designed to end international fears of foreign domination of Majorca where large Italian forces have been reported concentrated.

Although overcrowding of Valencia undoubtedly was an important factor in influencing the government's decision to move to Barcelona, three other factors reportedly were involved.

1. The move would stiffen Catalan resitance in what may be a vital stage of the war. The Catalans were reported weary of war in contrast to the high spirits of Madrid's inhabitants.

2. It will enable the government to keep a closer hold on the important Aragon front and trouble-making elements in Catalonia.

3. If necessary, the government will be able to escape easily into France in case of a Nationalist victory.

Little activity was reported from the Spanish battle fronts because of heavy rains. Scattered air raids were reported and one Nationalist airplane was said to have been shot down over Portbou.

Radio, Film Stars Rib Cantor During Anniversary Party

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Irvin S. Cobb called Eddie Cantor a "a modest, shy soul" and Jack Benny—just kidding—said he looked like a polo pony. All in all Eddie's professional silver anniversary party was a big success.

Six hundred big-wigs of comedy gathered at a dinner last night to present Eddie a gold plaque to celebrate his first 25 years as an entertainer.

George Jessel, motion picture producer who started on the stage with Cantor, was master of ceremonies. He lauded Eddie as "an orphan from the East Side of New York who on his own initiative reached the heights of the entertainment world."

Movie personalities who participated in a national radio broadcast in connection with the dinner included Sophie Tucker, Deanna Durbin, Martha Raye, Judy Garland, Bob Burns, Jimmy Durante and Bill Robinson.

Up and Down THE STREET

Today may be a holiday for most public school students, on account of the N. E. O. T. A. meeting in Cleveland, but members of the high school band and the bugle and drum corps have to "work," not only tonight but tomorrow as well. Tonight, they're scheduled to lead the Halloween parade, and tomorrow they'll play for the football game between the high school and the Western Reserve freshman team. But then, they enjoy their "work," so probably they won't need much commiseration.

The men who were carefully searching through the city dump at Longview avenue yesterday, were not on a "scavenger hunt." They were men from the Isaly Dairy plant on Franklin avenue, and they were searching for an ice pan which was accidentally taken to the dump. Not just an ordinary pan, but one that is valued at $38, according to a report made to police. It had not been located today.

It really would have been a big party, if people in all the cars parked along the street were going the same place a West Side Mansfield woman was last night. She'd been invited to an East Mansfield home to a party, and found the street lined on both sides with parked cars. "My, this must be an awfully big party," she commented. But it was soon explained. There was a night football game in progress in the neighborhood, and most of the cars she saw had brought football fans to the game.

A miniature black swastika, Adolf Hitler's official ensigna, and a salami sandwich made with hard German bread, were brought home as souvenirs by Miss Alice Miller, clerk in the county auditor's office, who just returned from New York. The sandwich, she said, was given to her by relatives returning from Germany and the swastika was the gift of a friend who allegedly "smuggled" several of them into this country from Germany.

N. O. Good, believe it or not, is a candidate for council at Lucas, and he probably hopes the voters exercise their sense of humor when they come to his name on the ballot at Tuesday's election. Another candidate for council at Shelby also has distinction in his name. He is Kenneth Roethlisberger whose 21-letter title is the longest on any of the ballots and the only one the printer couldn't set in capital letters.

GETS $44,175

City Receives Last Share of Property Tax Revenue.

Announcement was made today by City Auditor Paul Kelley that the city of Mansfield had received $44,175.72 in the final distribution of the June property tax collections from the county. The final settlement brings a total of $124,175.72 received by the city, Kelley said.

Kelley said the amount would go into the general fund to bolster the running cash balance of approximately $14,000.

He said the amount was all anticipated revenue and that the bulk of the amount would go into the sinking fund for the retirement of bonded indebetedness. The remainder will be distributed to special funds for miscellaneous purposes, he said.

KILLER TRIES TO END LIFE IN JAIL

Man, Convicted of Murder, Found With Throat Slashed.

BAY CITY, Mich. —(U.P.)— Anthony Chebatoris, found guilty of the murder of Henry Porter by a federal court jury last night, today attempted to take his own life by slashing his throat.

Attaches at Saginaw General hospital where he was taken said they expected he would live.

Two sheriff's deputies found Chebatoris lying on the floor of his cell in a pool of blood.

He had slashed his throat with part of a safety razor blade, they said. He had cut several deep gashes in his arm also.

GUGGENHEIM DIVORCEE, ESCORT INJURED AND ROBBED BY GUNMEN

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Eaton Guggenheim, 32, recently divorced wife of C. L. Meyer Robert Guggenheim, an heir to the Guggenheim mining fortune, and her farm hand escort were attacked and robbed by two men early today as they left an eating place in Queens, not far from the scene of the "Red Circle" murders.

Mrs. Guggenheim and John Fry, jr., 23-year-old employe on Guggenheim's Firenze farm at Babylon, Long Island, walked into a diner at Mineola and reported they were attacked by two heavy-set men as they left Felecci's Commercial club on Springfield boulevard and robbed of $461.

Their clothes were torn and both were bleeding from wounds. They said they had started to enter their automobile, parked two blocks from the restaurant, when the men appeared

The men dragged Frey away from the car, he said, hit him on the head, kicked him and took his wallet containing $161. The bandits then struck Mrs. Guggenheim on the chin, knocking her down, and took $300 from her. The men fled into the darkness and escaped, leaving their victims on the ground

Fry and Mrs. Guggenheim drove to Mineola, reported to Nassau county police and were treated at the Nassau hospital.

After questioning by Nassau county and Queens county police the couple returned to Babylon.

FACES RETURN

Former Suspect In Safe Theft to Be In Court Again.

Raymond Wareham, one of a trio held here recently in connection with the robbery of the Sears Roebuck store in Mansfield Oct. 4, was to be returned to Richland county today from Coshocton to face a sentence for violation of his probation.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott said he ordered Wareham brought back to Mansfield after Coshocton county authorities offered to release him to Richland county. He was held at Coshocton on a burglary charge.

Several days of questioning by authorities here failed to link Wareham or his two companions with the Sears Roebuck safe robbery.

Wareham was placed on probation for two years in June, 1934, after he pleaded guilty in common pleas court here to an indictment charging him with assault with intent to rob. The probation period was later extended.

POWERS STUDY NEW PROBLEMS

Non-Intervention Committee Meets Today on Spanish Troop Withdrawal.

LONDON—(AP)—Two other major world problems—an old one and a new one—came to the forefront today as the weary nonintervention sub-committee tried once more to reach an agreement on the withdrawal of foreign troops from Spain.

Of no direct connection with the Spanish civil war but, like it, tangled in the maze of European affairs were:

Germany's often voiced demand for return of her old colonies now backed by the powerful voice of Premier Mussolini of Italy, and Increasing indications that European powers were hoping for some form of leadership from the United States in the nine-power pact talks on the Chinese-Japanese war to start next Wednesday in Brussels.

The Spanish neutrality group was summoned for an afternoon meeting with brighter prospects of reaching some form of agreement—or at least avoiding collapse of the all but collapsed nonintervention system.

Eight of the sub-committee members were prepared to go ahead without Soviet Russia if Moscow persisted in her stand against granting of belligerent rights to the warring sides in Spain until the "bulk" of foreign soldiers had been evacuated.

A. F. OF L., CIO STUDY SPEECH BY G. M. CHIEF

Charge Government Used Force to Compel Signing Contract Also Made.

BOSTON—(U.P.)—A few paragraphs from a speech by William L. Knudsen, president of the General Motors corporation, were studied carefully by Committee for Industrial Organization and American Federation of Labor leaders today. They appeared to some to be a tacit endorsement of the craft union, the type sponsored by the A. F of L, as opposed to the industrial unions of the CIO.

The General Motors corporation has a contract with the United Automobile Workes, an industrial union and a CIO affiliate, signed after last winter's sit-down strike.

Another paragraph of Knudsen's speech was taken as a charge that General Motors had been forced by the "government" to come to terms with the union against its will.

'Ordered Settlements'.

"The whole effort (sit-down strike) was ill-planned and would have been abortive or have caused bloody riots but for the fact that the government finally stepped in and practically ordered settlements on a temporary basis of recognition for members, and the collective bargaining was saved for the union."

Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan had a prominent part in the negotiations that ended the strike. He worked in close co-operation with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Speaking before the annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts last night, Knudsen began outlining the "fundamentals underlying the labor movement." He then said:

"Men will band together on the basis of craft, and with some sense, the idea being hundreds of years old. If a man has any kind of skill, he is proud of it, openly or silently."

Knudsen then said that a danger of industrial unionism, as it was manisfested in last winter's automotive strikes, was the assumption that "a tool maker or a first class grinder should concern himself with the plight of his union brother who is pushing a truck."

"The grievances of a dozen men caused 5,000 men to lose three or four days' pay" in a number of instances, he continued.

DIES IN SOUTH

A. E. McFarland, 75, to Be Buried In Florida.

A. E. McFarland, aged 75, former Mansfield resident, died Thursday in Jacksonville, Fla., according to word received by relatives here.

Mr. McFarland was born a few miles west of Mansfield and learned the bookbinding trade here. About fifty years ago he went to Chicago, later to Des Moines, Ia., and in recent years has lived in Jacksonville.

He is survived by his wife, Jean Begg McFarland, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Fritz and Miss Cora D. McFarland, both of Mansfield.

Funeral and burial services were held at Jacksonville at 4.30 this afternoon.

PLANS NEW HUNT FOR EARHART

Friend of Husband Not Convinced Aviatrix, Noonan Perished.

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—A new search for Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred Noonan, who disappeared on a flight across the South Pacific near Howland Island last July, will be started from here within five weeks, it was announced today by E. H. Dimity, friend of George Palmer Putnam, husband of the woman flier.

Dimity said he was not yet convinced that Miss Earhart and Noonan perished.

A large three-masted schooner was being equipped in Seattle for the search, he said. The ship was to carry a small seaplane, power launches small surface boats, short wave radio, and deep sea diving equipment.

G. O. P. LEADER DIES

MARION—(AP)—Fred W. Warner, 55, prominent Marion attorney and Republican political leader, died at his home today of cancer.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Again "The Gentle Rain."

ONE THING about this extra session of congress that seems clear—and about the only thing—is that it certainly was not forced upon the president. It was altogether his own idea. There was no demand for it either from congress or from the people.. Certain members of the cabinet still think it unnecessary, and several senate leaders advised against it. The present business situation, which would seem to justify it now, was not considered at the time the decision was made—and was not, in fact, known to exist.

IN VIEW of the original and avowed program, it would hardly be popular with business. Hence it seems that the call was exclusively in the interests of labor and agriculture. These are the two classes to which Mr. Roosevelt has catered consistently since he came in, and it is natural that, for political reasons, he should continue so to do. The extraordinary thing, however, is that from neither of these groups was there any pressure for an extra session, nor is there any unanimity of thought concerning the proposed legislation supposedly in their interests, or any insistence that the urgency is such that it is impossible to wait until January for action.

ON THE contrary, the farm organizations have not yet decided whether they want compulsory or voluntary crop control, and, while Mr. Wallace inclines toward the former, he has taken no fixed position and the president is reported to be "on the fence." It would seem that the surest way to expedite farm legislation would be for the president and Mr. Wallace definitely to know what they want. On the labor side, there is equal division. It is true that Mr. Lewis' CIO lined up last session behind the administration wages and hours bill, the heart of which is a labor board, to which vast powers are delegated, but the A. F. of L. is not for that bill, and Senator (Major) George Berry, once the most articulate of Roosevelt rubber stamps and a labor leader of note, has declared against the board idea in a vigorous, not to say vehement, way.

* * *

IT DOES SEEM reasonable to believe that if time is the essence of the program, time could be saved by ironing out the differences of opinion, not on the details but on the really vital features of these two measures—differences that now exist among the people they are designed to please. Once that is done, action in congress would certainly be expedited. If you want to save time that is the way to save it, the four weeks which the extra session gives before the Christmas holidays does not mean much.

* * *

THE OFFICIAL explanation for the Nov. 15 call is based on the crop-control bill, which it is urged should be in operation in time for the "spring planting." That's one way of looking at it but there is another and extremely practical political way. It is pointed out, for instance, that, while it may be desirable for the farmer to know what the law is before he does his spring planting, it is also desirable for the administration politicians to get the checks flowing before the spring primaries. Since 1933 the Roosevelt administration, through the AAA for soil conservation or other devices, has distributed approximately $500,000,000 in cash annually to farmers.

* * *

THIS IS NOT intended to convey the idea that all the farmers who received checks were for sale and their votes purchased for cash, but it is intended to convey that the practical politicians in this administration regard the "gentle rain of checks," as Dr. Moley once called it, as an enormous political asset and know that the great bureaucratic organization through which the distribution is arranged and provided is the most effective propaganda and political machine the country has ever known. There is no question as to the latter. The organization involves more than 80,000 jobholders of one sort and another. They are in every county in every state and their personal interest is in supporting administration candidates as well as measures and in perpetuating the administration in power. That in an election year, with the New Deal and Mr. Roosevelt an inescapable issue, his political friends should regard it as essential that this machine should function fully and the "gentle rain of checks" fall steadily on the voting precincts of the farm lands, is easy to understand. The country could wait but the campaign can't.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Maybe you haven't realized it yet, but you're supposed to be saying "Thanks a million" to Hollywood—and saying it with coin.

If you don't, Hollywood will be in a sorry way. But Hollywood isn't worried about that, because it's pretty sure you'll do your part. Almost always, you have.

This town is turning out million-dollar pictures with the nonchalance of a veteran gambler tossing in another stack of blue chips. Nearly 40 films, current or budgeted, will cost in the neighborhood of a cool million. Some will cost more. One is down for $2,000,000 ("Goldwyn Follies").

Quite a few pictures have cost that much and more, but not intentionally. The silent "Ben Hur" piled up troubles and took years to get back its $3,000,000-odd nut. "Hell's Angels" cost $3,500,000, partly because of junking a silent version and microphoning it. The years have put the picture in the clear.

But only 23 years ago this village thought D. W. Griffith was cracked for sinking $105,000 into "The Birth of a Nation." That picture has grossed nearly $14,000,000. It was one of the first to show Hollywood that the more you spend the more you make. "It's gotta be big" is no mere wisecrack. It's gotta be big to get the kind of grosses and prestige Hollywood wants.

Griffith's picture, produced on comparable scale today, would cost approximately $1,100,000. Story, star, director, labor, materials costs have rocketed. Lillian Gish got $250 a week then—big money. Irene Dunne, today, gets more than $100,000 per picture.

Much of the cost of a modern million-dollar movie is "insurance." Spending that much, the producer wants to be sure he has the right director, stars, story. Successful play or novel is one form of insurance. He'll pay what he must to get it, even if it's that staggering $250,000 for the play "Room Service" or $200,000 for "You Can't Take It With You." Owning such a property, he won't trust a bright newcomer with it. He'll hand it to John Ford ($100,000 for "Hurricane") or Leo McCarey (who can write his own ticket after "The Awful Truth") or some other veteran. And he'll get stars, names that come high because the public will pay to see them. One-fourth of his cost will go to cast, exclusive of extras, bits, and characters, who take an additional one-twentieth.

And then there's "overhead"—studio operation, including executive salaries and everything down to drinking water. That item adds from 15 to 40 per cent on the cost of the picture, which in the end pays all the bills—they hope—and returns a nice profit.

* * *

Incidentally, among the catch-if-catch-must volunteers was Buddy Westmore, the make-up man who couldn't make up with Martha Raye . . . Alice brought him over from her home lot. . . .

Girl Grows Tired of Boy's "Line"

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: How would you like to be a girl who has a lover who claims he loves her and holds her in his thoughts, but never takes her anywhere?

"True, he planned to see me last summer and his plans failed because it was so illusive to me, but he knows where to find me if he really cares to. He knew then.

"Now, do you think it would be very improper, Virginia Lee, if I just suggest, now that the autumn is so invigorating and the leaves are changing so, a trip up north would be so grand; a steak cooked out in the open would be appetizing. And let that be only half of it, or a smaller part of it. His company would be so comforting and inspiring.

"He has taken much fun from me and I hardly feel equal to what I would like, but really the way he has played me it is time it is settled. I wish he would ask me, but he never does. What shall I do? PLAIN WEARY."

Well, that is a somewhat ambiguous letter, Weary. It looks very much to me that the young man says nice things to you just because he knows you'll swallow them and be flattered, but he doesn't mean them.

I agree that it is high time to call his bluff. Make the suggestion of the trip to the autumn woods with the steak, etc., and see if he accepts. If he doesn't I certainly wouldn't waste any more time with him. You will know he is just one of those guys with a line, and devote yourself to more worthy members of the strong sex.

Oh, oh, I expected this:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have just read Lonely Country Blue Eyes' letter and I thought I would sit right down and write to you.

"I can't find a fellow who is decent and good looking. They are conceited and have bad dispositions, or are fast, etc. Are there any that take a girl out for a good time? By that I mean take in a show or a dance, and treat her decent?

"Do all the fellows nowadays drink, smoke and act fast? I don't care whether the fellow has a car or money as long as he is decent and respectable. I'd like to find a fellow who likes to spend an evening at home listening to the radio and making candy instead of always wanting to go somewhere. — "WAITING FOR A GGOOD MAN."

Too bad you and the boy who wrote can't get together. I'd be willing to bet anything, though, that you wouldn't suit each other. It is odd how many people think the unknown must be so much more attractive than what they have at hand. Of course, there are plenty of nice boys.

One-half cup of milk addded to the water in which cauliflower is being boiled will keep the vegetable firm and fresh looking.

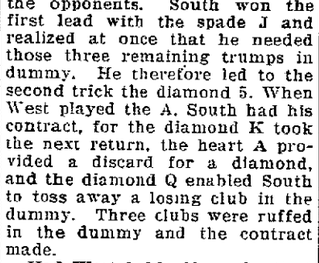
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WAIT FOR AN HONOR

If you see that the declarer has the K or Q in the dummy and may possibly hold its mate in his closed hand, be careful about the way you use your A. If you play it on a small card, you will then set up two tricks for him in the suit, where waiting for an honor can limit him to perhaps one trick and may thereby beat his contract.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

One pair in a duplicate tournament got real ambitious with the North-South cards of this deal and landed in a contract of 6-Spades, whereas at all other tables the players were content to play for 4-Spades.

Fortunately for the daring pair, the West player made a bad slip on the second play and thereby enabled them to make an impossible contract. West chose as his opening lead the spade 10, three different suits having been bid by the opponents. South won the first lead with the spade J and realized at once that he needed those three remaining trumps in dummy. He therefore led to the second trick the diamond 5. When West played the A, South had his contract, for the diamond K took the next return, the heart A provided a discard for a diamond, and the diamond Q enabled South to toss away a losing club in the dummy. Three clubs were ruffed in the dummy and the contract made.

Had West held off on the first diamond lead, the diamond Q would never have provided a discard of the club in dummy and a trick would have been lost on that suit.

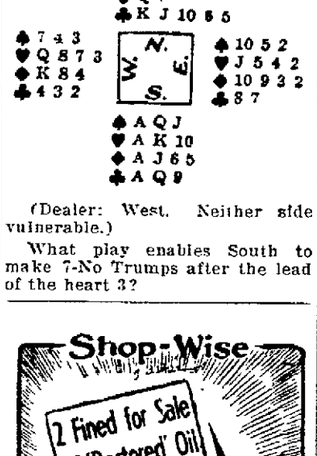
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What play enables South to make 7-No Trumps after the lead of the heart 3?

—Beauty—

Preserve the Natural Line Of Eyebrows

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THERE STILL are some girls today who persist in trying to achieve exotically and unaturally arched eyebrows. But most of the beauties of screen, stage and society believe in letting nature take its course insofar as eyebrows are concerned. They make no attempt to change the natural contour of their brows. They pluck them, of course, but merely to remove any stray hairs and to keep them clean and neat in appearance. For it is now believed that good old Mother Nature shapes the brows so that they harmonize perfectly with the remainder of one's features.

Personally, I think that this is the right idea. It is my belief that when plucking the eyebrows, the natural line of each brow should be preserved, so far as possible. Only the stray hairs that tend to make them look unruly should be extracted. Never try to achieve the exaggerated and unique arches of your favorite exotic screen star, for if the brows are plucked into a shape that Nature never intended them to have, they may detract, rather than add, to your loveliness.

If you really want to do a perfect job of plucking your eyebrows, always sterilize your eyebrow tweezers before you use them. When the brows are plucked, the pores in the skin open, and if the tweezers are not perfectly clean, germs may enter these pores and cause blemishes and eruptions. The sterilizing process is, after all, a simple matter. Even boiling water will do the trick. And it certainly is worth doing, don't you think?

Pluck Carefully.

In addition, of course, the plucking itself should be done carefully. Before the tweezing is started, a generous coating of cold cream should be smoothed over each brow and permitted to remain on for a while. This will soften the brows and surrounding skin. Then the brows should be brushed into shape with a small eyebrow brush, and the plucking itself should be done. After the tweezing and shaping have been completed, all remaining cream should be removed, and a soothing astringent should be applied to close the pores, to eliminate any possible germ infection, and to tone up the skin surrounding the eyebrows.

Another factor that tends to make the brows look fuzzy and neglected is when the tiny hairs are stiff and unruly, and refuse to lie in their proper alignment. But it really isn't difficult to train them. Merely brushing the brows frequently with a small eyebrow brush will make the tiny hairs more tractable and help to keep them neatly in place. And if the brush is moistened with a bit of plain vaseline or orderless castor oil before each brushing, the treatment will prove doubly effective.

Some eyebrows, of course, are extremely stubborn and refuse to respond satisfactorily to the brushing. It is possible to train such brows, however, through the use of ordinary cornstarch with enough cold water to form a thick, smooth paste. Then brush your brows into shape with a small brush, and spread the paste thickly over them. The paste will quickly harden, so let it remain on over night. The following morning remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. And as the final step, brush the brows with vaseline or castor oil to promote their health and glossiness.

Hot food should not be put into the refrigerator as this raises the whole refrigerator temperature, and may result in the deterioration of other food. The practice also wastes ice.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I LOOKED at my father almost in terror at his uncanny knowledge of what I was trying to tell him.

"How—how did you know?" I faltered.

"'Elementary, my dear Watson'," he quoted. "You speak of foiling Philip Veritzen's plot against Mary. All of us know that if he has a plot, which I sometimes doubt, part of it is a planned propinquity for Noel and Princess Olina. Combine that knowledge of mine with your expressions of fear that my peace of mind might be destroyed and my privacy invaded and what else could I deduce but that you had hit upon the very commendable expedient of offering the exiled queen and princess sanctuary at the farm, depending upon our resourcefulness to keep Noel away from here."

One word of his answer caromed comfortingly around my brain.

"Did you say 'commendable'?" I asked.

"That certainly was the word I used," he answered. "So commendable do I deem it that I was contemplating an invitation to them to come to the farm as soon as Queen Olga was able to leave the hospital."

Trouble Involved?

The gasping ejaculation I gave was composed of equal portions of relief and astonishment. But after a second or two there was borne in upon me that something deeper than solicitude for a possibly shattered marital romance lay in this invitation which my father had planned to give.

I looked at him steadily and put my thought into words.

"There's trouble somewhere," I said.

"Nothing that's worth bothering your head about," he said, but I leaned forward and took his hands in mine.

"Father dear," I said. "I'm not a child, but your very loving daughter, and it breaks my heart when you run yourself into danger that I'm not allowed to share. Won't you please tell me what's wrong? I'm sure there's something."

Will Tell Her.

He stiffened into immobility, and for a moment I thought that I had offended him by my pertinacity. Then the old loving light flashed into his eyes, and he smiled indulgently at me.

"There is no reason why you should not know," he said, "and I will tell you presently all about it. But first, please tell me all about this fancied plot of Phillip Veritzen's. I thought he'd had all idea of plotting of any knind knocked out of his system after that fiasco when he so nearly lost his son, his royal proteges and his fortune. But you know the genus of humans who can only learn by experience."

"You want everything I can tell you," I said, "or just the high lights?"

"Everything, if you don't mind," he said, "every least detail, no matter how unimportant it may seem to you."

"Mary ran away from the hotel to see us," I began, and then went through the saga of her visit, of Philip Veritzen's pursuit of her, and Dicky's spiriting her back to the hotel without her father-in-law's knowledge. I went into detail of Philip Veritzen's plan as outlined to me, to produce my play, give Mary the leading feminine role, and to send her to an apartment in New York with me as guardian during rehearsals.

My father made a single comment on that.

"I'll not have him overworking you," he said bristling.

Inquires of Resources.

"I don't think there's much danger of that," I told him, smiling, and then went on, telling him of Mr. Veritzen's insistence that Princess Olina help Noel with his operetta, and of Queen Olga's carefully secretive summons to me to come to the hospital where she revealed her worry about Olina's association with Noel, and her wish that the two could be kept apart.

Finally I told him of her anxiety to be free from obligations to the man whom she had recognized, although he did not know it, as the tragic romance of her youth.

"What resources has she?" he asked abruptly.

"I was just about to tell you," I said. "She wished to ask your advice. She has about enough in a bank over here to recompense Philip Veritzen, but paying him will leave her penniless. Of course, if she could find her emeralds—"

My father gave a distinct start of surprise, something most unusual with him. He leaned forward tensely.

"Emeralds?" he repeated. "What emeralds?"

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Oct. 30.

Reading from the lunar as well as mutual aspects of major planets, this may prove to be a day of extremely important operations, with matters moving at high pressure with much initiative, progress and prosperity. The friendship of those in place and power holds important influence, and these should be sought and cultivated as a means of attaining high goals. Sentiment, religious or emotional stirrings, with very peculiar or mysterious situations, mark this advancement. It would seem as though there might be a happy breaking away from old ties and foundations.

Those whose birthday it is are at the brink of a revolutionary change in their lives, with a breaking away from old crystallizations and frustrations to make a definite advancement upon high goals and levels of progress and prosperity. Friendship of the mighty figures in this and should be cultivated, as emotional, spiritual or intellectual forces have high potency at this time.

A child born on this day may be excellently equipped for a high place in life, with elements of a worldly prosperity as well as intellectual and spiritual progress and attainment.

My Neighbor Says:

Narcissus bulbs can be started in open sulight in the room and do not need to be kept in darkness for starting. Settle bulbs in a shallow bowl containing about three-quarters of an inch of small pebbles.

Wash mirrors with a damp piece of chamois. If too wet chamois is used some of the water may penetrate back of the frame and injure the glass.

If one tumbler has become stuck in another in piling them by the kitchen sink, pour cold water in the upper glass which will contract it. Then let the lower glass soak in warm water and the glasses will become disengaged.

WINTER FRUITS TOP OFFERINGS AT MARKETS; APPLES PLENTIFUL

Fruit on the market this week is confined largely to winter varieties, although there are still a few storage peaches, home grown grapes and Italian prune plums. But the greatest variety of apples may be found at all markets, along with the new crop of dried fruits, including figs and dates. There are also a few pineapples. The cantaloupes are mostly Thurlocks from Arizona.

Both California and Florida oranges of the new crops are on the market, the former being less expensive. Seedless Texas grapefruit, which is popular with northern consumers, also has made its appearance.

The new crop of soft shell almonds arrived here this week, chestnuts from states surrounding Ohio and new English walnuts are offered.

There is little difference between the vegetable markets of today and several months ago. There are young green onions, small radishes, fresh lettuce and green beans, and big, firm tomatoes The latter, however, are hot-house grown Shipped in asparagus is another reminder of summer produce.

Large supplies of curley kale, endive, spinach, small beets and turnips, salsify and butter lettuce; brussel sprouts, and home grown cauliflower (from 15 to 25c a head), parsnips, broccoli and savoy cabbage will be found at various markets over the city.

All kinds of baking squash and pie pumpkins are on the market.

OHIO BUILDINGS, LAND VALUED AT 132 MILLIONS

Inventory of State Property Shows Growth of Tasks of Various Offices.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The state of Ohio has land, buildings, supplies and equipment worth $132,245,683.40, according to a report submitted to Governor Davey by accountants headed by John H. Turner, Cleveland, who recently completed an examination of the state auditor's department and its records.

The inventory of the state's properties included the following items: Buildings, $68,712,426.98; land, $35,413,031.72; equipment, $21,149,471 38; liquor stocks, $2,481,797.89; supplies, $1,668,043.32; materials, $1,594,940.31; and museum collection, $1,225,971.30.

The more than $21,000,000 of equipment included the following items: Educational equipment, $9,506,793.99; tools and machinery, $3,147,728.20; household equipment, $2,344,874.99; office, $2,042,729 39; wearing apparel, $1,063,488.20; agricultural equipment, $768,075.48; livestock, $443,452.68; medical and surgical equipment, $224,062.99; and miscellaneous, $1,407,661 78.

Shows Growth.

Showing a striking growth in the magnitude of the state's business, the report disclosed that in 1921 the auditor issued 283,262 warrants totaling $47,808,266.16, and in 1936 issued 2,138,206 warrants. The examination, required by law whenever the office of auditor changes hands, covered the 16 years that Joseph T. Tracy, Columbus, was state auditor, from 1921 to 1936, inclusive.

It criticized methods utilized in the department during that period, pointing out that many claims owed the state for years remained outstanding without efforts to collect, that no complete inventory of state properties was kept, that records fail to show the reason for compromising of cancelling many claims, and that the system of bookkeeping in general was antiquated.

The report recommended installation of an adequate and modern system of accounting, making of greater efforts to collect claims owed the state, keeping of a prepetual inventory of state properties, and the installation of a modern filing system for important records.

COST HIGHER

Ohio Counties Spend $280 For Care of Orphans.

COLUMBUS— (UP) —Ohio's counties spent an average of $280.94 for the care of each child in their county children's homes during 1936, Miss T. Gertrude Fortune, superintendent of the state charities division reported today.

The statistical report on children's homes' expenditures just completed, disclosed that a total of $2,495,094 was spent last year by 67 homes and child welfare boards in the state for care of a daily average of 8,881 children.

The report also disclosed a slight increase in the cost of children's homes during 1936 compared with the previous year. The average cost per child in 1935 was $277.33 or about 2.7 per cent lower than last year. During 1935, institutions spent $2,405,789 and cared for an average of 8,802 wards.

MISSOURI COTTON GOOD

COLUMBIA, Mo — (UP) —Missouri ranks above all cotton producing states of the south in the average yield per acre of the crop, according to a joint survey made by the University of Missouri and the United States department of agriculture.

POPULARITY

Fresh cranberries are now the popular fruit. Their tart-sweet flavor and appetizing color make other foods look and taste better.

The real tasty sauce is made this way:

TEN-MINUTE CRANBERRY SAUCE
(Stewed Cranberries)

1 pound or quart 2 cups water
(4 cups) cranberries 1½ to 2 cups sugar

METHOD: Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes; add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

WOMEN FARMERS INCREASE

DAVIS, Cal.—(U.P.)—A sharp increase of farming interest among women was announced by 4-H club directors in the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California. Girls outnumbered boys attending an annual encampment of young farmers here.

SIT-DOWN ON RAILROAD

JUST A DISH CLOTH TO YOU...but

it's "home sweet home" to millions of germs!

A DISH CLOTH is full of deceit. It may look perfectly clean and yet be a haven for millions of infection-spreading germs that can be easily transmitted to hands, dishes and glassware. The microscopic view at the right discloses a germ condition that indicates the imperative need for regular disinfection of dish cloths. The simple and efficient way is to wash dish cloths, then soak in a Clorox solution as directed on label for stain removal ... an added safeguard to health. Clorox in the regular laundering process makes white cottons and linens snowy-white, sanitary. Clorox also deodorizes, disinfects and removes numerous stains—even scorch and mildew—from white and color-fast cottons and linens.

Follow the directions on the Clorox label as a guide to easier and safer housekeeping in laundry, kitchen and bathroom. It also lists many important personal uses.... Clorox is always uniform in quality ... concentrated for economy. There is only one Clorox ... order by name.

Tygers Face One of Tough Tests of Season Saturday

MINNESOTA PICKED TO BEAT IRISH

CHICAGO — (AP) — Minnesota gets its chance tomorrow to even an old score with the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame. The schools have met on the gridiron three times, with Notre Dame winning two games and tying the third. In Minneapolis tomorrow, Minnesota's Gophers will be favored to take their first victory from the Irish before a record crowd of 64,000 spectators.

In 1925, Notre Dame came from behind to win 19 to 7 and the following year the Irish took a 20 to 7 decision. In 1927 the teams tied at 7-all, with Herb Joesting tossing the pass that enabled Minnesota to avert a third straight Irish whipping.

Northwestern, which goes to Madison, is favored to defeat the Wisconsin Badgers, now tied with Ohio State and Minnesota for the Big Ten lead, but the Wildcat chances of victory suffered a blow yesterday when it was learned Fred Vanzo, regular quarterback, will not play against the Harry Stuhldreher team. Vanzo injured a shoulder against Ohio State.

Michigan, which defeated Iowa last Saturday for the first Wolverine Big Ten victory since 1935, will be favored to defeat Illinois at Champaign. The game probably will be a thriller with the Illini fighting to become the third team ever to defeat Michigan four years in a row. Minnesota and Michigan State have accomplished that feat. Illinois has won its last three with Michigan, with each game decided by a point after touchdown or field goal.

Ohio State worked out today on Stagg field for its game with Chicago's Maroons, again in the underdog role. Iowa traveled to Lafayette for battle with the Purdue Boilermakers, with Indiana's Hoosiers going outside the conference to oppose Nebraska on the Cornhusker field.

Murphy Expects Charges to Give Reserve Frosh a Stiff Argument.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

A TASK as tough, if not tougher, as any tackled by the current football edition of Mansfield high school confronted the Tygers today as they completed their preparations for an engagement with the Western Reserve university freshman at Stadium field Saturday.

Whether the Tygers can again rise to the heights of the Massillon game to hold the future varsity of the Cleveland school is questionable, but Coach Russ Murphy's men apparently are ready for the test.

Display Hustle.

According to Murphy, the Tygers have displayed more hustle in drills this week than anytime since the Massillon encounter, and he believes this is an indication that they have snapped out of the lethargy which marked their play in following melees.

Murphy does not boast of Mansfield's victory chances Saturday, but expects the Tygers to offer the more experienced and heavier freshmen a stif fargument.

While the victory prospects are not as encouraging as they were for some of the other games which the Tygers failed to win, Mansfield has a better than ordinary chance to win the tilt, despite the physical advantage held by reserve.

The visitors' lineup will be studded with high school luminaries from this state, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. It will be the pick of what Reserve athletic officials regard as one of the strongest freshman squads ever assembled at the Cleveland school.

Notable among the freshmen are Kenneth Fryer, Wellsburg, W. Va., and John Ries, Barberton, halfback. With Steve Belichick, Struthers, and Bob Kresja, Shaker Heights, Fryer and Ries will carry the offensive burden.

Outstanding performers in the line include Louis Curra, Smithton, Pa., and Andy Wyhowanec, Tiltonville, a couple of 190-pound tackles.

Hallabrin Improved.

Mansfield's victory chances are greatly enhanced this week by Capt. John Hallabrin's return to form. The ankle injury suffered by the hard-running Hallabrin the week following the Massillon game has responded to treatment. The injury handicapped the Tyger leader little in the Shelby game.

Dick Nagle, who has been developing rapidly since his withdrawal from the line, will be at fullback Saturday, with John Kinkel sharing the halfback posts with Hallahrin, Joe Majoy, whose blocking has been an important item this year, will be at quarterback.

The Mansfield line will remain unchanged. It will include Dan Stehle and Elmer Dials, ends; Daryl Heiser and John Horvath, tackles; Barney Adams and Warren Rupp, guards and Bud Ziegler, center.

Waldorf Tells How Coaches Acquire Those Gray Hairs

By LYNN WALDORF
Football Coach, Northwestern University.

I HAVE always held to what may be termed an old-fashioned belief that football is a game in which the players should derive a lot of fun and in which they should be trained to use their own initiative.

There always will be hard work connected with football. It is a contact sport and requires skill and stamina. But we should not lose sight of the fact that it is a game and should be carried out as a game, not as a war, and above all, not as drudgery.

Waldorf

An incident in our game with Ohio State last year illustrates the point about urging players to use their own initiative once they are on the field.

Wild and Woolly.

It had been a hair-raising afternoon. Both teams scored two touchdowns, but Northwestern converted both of its points after touchdown and Ohio State missed its second try.

We finally came into possession of the ball on our 20-yard line, with only a minute and 20 seconds remaining to play. Since we were protecting a one-point lead it would be possible to use up the remaining time by running three or four simple line plunges.

Accordingly, I called Ollie Adelman over and told him to go into the game and call our simplest play, a straight buck over the line. As Ollie reported we settled back on the bench awaiting the final gun.

Imagine our surprise when we saw the team wheel into position and uncork a complicated double reverse play. It so happened that the play gained 51 yards and almost scored a touchdown. Fortunately, we still had possession of the ball when the game ended a moment later.

Aha! An Idea.

On the way to the dressing room I asked Adelman why he had called the double reverse instead of a line buck as instructed. He said he did call a line plunge in the huddle, but Capt. Steve Reid checked the signal. Reid had observed that a new lineman had just come into the game for Ohio State and he (Reid) thought he could take him out on a reverse play.

So the boys ran the reverse and I added a few more gray hairs to an already generous assortment.

TOPS OHIO GRID CARD

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A football engagement scheduled two years ago as "just another football game" stood out today as the "natural" of the season—Saturday's clash between the unbeaten teams of Western Reserve and Dayton universities on the Gem City Flyers' gridiron.

Dayton has won its last seven games, five of them this year, but the Cleveland Red Cats have copped 18 in a row, and are undefeated in their last 28. A crowd of 13,000, the largest ever to see a game in Dayton, is assured for the classic which takes the No. 1 spot in the state as Ohio's Bucks travel to Chicago for a Big Ten clash with the Maroons.

Ohio's other unbeatend and untied eleven, Case, faces a tough foe in Miami university at Oxford. Although over-shadowed by the Reserve-Dayton clash in statewide interest, games in other sectors offer a full program for Ohio fans.

Two Buckeye loop games, Ohio university at Marshall and Cincinnati at Ohio Wesleyan, are on the slate, along with these Ohio conference clashes: Ohio Northern at Capital, Marietta at Otterbein, Wittenberg at Oberlin, Wooster at Muskingum and Bowling Green at Kent State.

Non-league events include: Baldwin-Wallace at Springfield (Mass.) Y.M.C.A. college, John Carroll at Akron, Bluffton at Rio Grande, Detroit Tech at Kenyon, Tennessee State at Wilberforce, Toledo at Wayne, Bethany at Hiram, Defiance at Buffalo, Centre at Xavier, and Lawrence Institute at Alfred Holbrook.

Two Ohio conference games, Heidelberg at Findlay and Ashland at Mount Union, are scheduled under the lights tonight.

A football special to the Ohio-Michigan game in Ann Arbor, Nov. 20, will be run through Mansfield by the Erie railroad according to Lowell Bourns, president of the University club, co-sponsor of the special. Bourns also announced that a number of reservations are also available for the special to the Ohio-Illinois game in Columbus, Nov. 13. Reservations may be made at the Erie ticket office.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)—Tony Lazzeri, master-mind of the New York Yankees' infield for 10 years and member of the original "Murderers' Row," was on the Chicago Cubs' roster today as player-coach in Owner Phil Wrigley's first move to rebuild a team that kicked away two straight National league pennants. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

"Tony may be just the man we need," said Wrigley. "But he won't be manager. We've got Charlie Grimm for that."

ARMSTRONG FAVORED

NEW YORK—(AP)—Henry Armstrong and Peter Sarron, a couple of battling buzz-saws, pop out of Mike Jacobs' hat (where boxing's new czar carries all his business) and tangle for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden tonight to settle the featherweight title mess.

The meeting of the irresistible force in Armstrong's knockout wallop and the immovable defense of the boxer from 'Bama who has never been floored marks Jacobs' first venture as boss of the house that Tex built, and should iron out the current complicated situation that has three titleholders at the head of the 126-pound parade.

Strictly on his recent record of 21 knockouts in 22 trips to the post, the Californian goes into the ring as favorite at odds ranging from 3-1 to 3-2.

Madison Trounces Freddies, 88 to 0

Rams Set New All-Time Scoring Record as They Rout Mid-State League Foe Before Shivering Crowd Under Winners' Lights.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ESTABLISHING a new all-time scoring record for a Madison high school eleven, Coach Al Fendrick's 1937 grid machine registered its third consecutive Mid-State league triumph Thursday night by drubbing Fredericktown, 88 to 0, in a one-sided tilt staged before a shivering crowd under the arcs at Madison stadium.

With Bill Wilkins, Hershey and Joe Miller pacing the touchdown parade, the undefeated Rams scored in all periods to hand the Freddies the worst whipping ever administered by any football aggregation coached by Fendrick.

Madison scored two touchdowns in the first period, five in the second and three each in the final two stanzas as it ran up the biggest score of the season over the invaders. Fredericktown marked up three first downs against the Rams' 10.

Rams Score Early.

Bill Wilkins opened the scoring spree two minutes after the start of the first chapter. With the ball on the Freddies' 15, Gene Harmon fired a long pass to Wilkins in the end zone. Joe Miller's kick for the extra point was low.

Five minutes later Harmon shot another pass from the invaders' 25, which Wilkins grabbed on the 10 to score standing up. Miller's kick was good and Madison was leading 13 to 0.

Bill Moritz added No. 3 on the first play of the second period when he slashed through left tackle from the 15. Doug De Nero added the conversion on a plunge. De Nero broke loose for a 38-yard jaunt to the Freddies' two to set the stage for another score. Hershey counted on a spinner and Moritz added the point on a plunge.

RED BIRDS TOP BUTLER

Loudonville Scores 26 to 6 Victory Over Stearnsmen In Mid-State Game.

By HOWARD ALLEN

LOUDONVILLE—The Loudonville Red Birds counted their victorious Mid-State league march by defeating the M. L. Stearns-coached Butler team, 26 to 6, here yesterday.

The Butler team showed little resistance as the heavier Ashland county combine submerged them in Lake Park.

Birds Score Early.

The Red Birds first tally came in the initial period after two minutes of progressive play by the Stearnsmen, who had the ball on their own 20 and Miller, midget quarterback for the Butlerites attempted a punt which was blocked and recovered by Loudonville on the Butler 15-yard stripe. The Red Birds advanced the ball to the 3 yard line from which Carter, went over the double stripe for the score. Carter passed to Nouse for the point.

Later in the opening period, Etzwiler, a substitute guard for the Birds, intercepted a Butler pass on his own 40 and raced 60 yards through a bewildered Butler team for another score. Carter's attempted dopkick for the point was incomplete. The first period ending with the Birds leading, 13 to 0.

Loudonville's next touchdown came in the second quarter after they had advanced the ball to the Butlerites' 10, when Selgfried, the Red Bird quarterback, dropped a pass into the arms of Carter, fullback, who went over for the third Loudonville tally. Carter's dropkick went between the uprights for the point. The score at the half gave Loudonville a 20 to 0 lead.

The Ashland countains continued their scoring pace in the third quarter when they advanced the ball to the Butler 19. Carter then skirted his own left end and raced over the last stripe for Loudonville's last score. Carter's dropkick for the point was wide.

Butler Scores Late.

The Stearnsmen started a march through the Red Birds with only four minutes of the game remaining. Using the "statue of Liberty" play on Loudonville's 30, Miller, Butler quarter, carried the oval over the Red Bird's goal for their only score. A line plunge for the point failed.

Hayes Office Decides Against Attempt to Place Montague In Cast.

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Paramount studio officials said today that after a conference with the Will Hays office they decided against using John Montague, the golf wizard who was acquitted of robbery charges in the east, in Bing Crosby's latest picture.

Crosby, the studio said, had saved Montague the role of a policeman in the picture. "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon." Filming of the picture has been underway for two weeks at Paramount studios. A studio official admitted that "there were some complaints" against giving a film role to Montague.

By HERBERT W. BARKER

MADISON TROUNCES FREDS

Madison worked the ball to the invaders' 40 and De Nero fired a pass to Bob Miller, who scampered over for another marker. Heichel converted on a plunge.

Blocks Punt, Scores.

Gerald Higgins blocked a Freddies' punt on the visitors' 35, retrieved the oval and galloped over for the sixth touchdown. Heichel failed to make the point on a smash through the center of the line.

The final score of the first half followed soon after when De Nero, behind brilliant blocking, raced 55 yards into "pay dirt." He added the extra point on a plunge.

With the lineup sprinkled with reserves, the green-uniformed machine set up another scoring opportunity when the forward wall broke through and blocked a Freddies' punt. Joe Miller snatched the oval on the 38 and skipped through a broken field to the two. On the next play Miller ploughed into center for touchdown No. 8. He also scored the point on a plunge.

Sheel, who replaced Bill Wilkins at end, took a pass from De Nero behind the line and romped 15 yards to add another marker. Heichel's plunge gave the Madison club a 61 to 0 lead. A Harmon-to-Wilkins pass from the Fredericktown 35 led to the final touchdown in the third period. Moritz plunged for the point.

Counts on Sweep.

After an exchange of punts, Madison took the ball on the 35, and after three thrusts at the line failed to gain, Joe Miller went over on a sweep. His kick for point was blocked.

Harmon accounted for touchdown No. 12 when he caught a Freddies' punt on his own 45 and raced through the entire visiting team to score. Heichel added another extra point on a plunge.

Hershey and De Neto were the key men of the final touchdown. The latter paved the way for the marker with a 20-yard run to the invaders' five and Hershey carried it over on a spinner. Joe Miller plunged for the final point of the tussle.

In the fading minutes of the game, with most of the regulars in the showers, the Freddies staged a desperate passing attack which netted them two first downs. It was the only time Fredericktown was able to advance the ball except on the first play of the battle, when a pass gave it the oval in midfield. Not once were the losers inside Madison territory.

Coach Fendrick's first string proteges played together only the first seven minutes of the game.

The biggest score ever chalked up by a Madison team was registered several years ago when the Rams trounced Butler, 64 to 0, at League park.

Stub Allison Expects To Be at Rose Bowl.

BERKELEY, Calif.—(U.P.)—The experts have risen as one man to pick University of California's "winner team" as the western representative for the Rose Bowl game, but on this jittery campus they cry: "Don't talk Rose Bowl to us." "Yes, I'll be in Pasadena on New Year's day," said Coach Stub Allison, whose California charges have beaten six foes this season.

"I think I'll be able to take in the Rose Bowl game. I may have some business down there and I think it would be a good idea to drop over and see what's doing in the Rose Bowl. I wonder who's going to play?"

CHICAGO COACH MAY WISH HE HAD TAKEN OHIO STATE JOB SATURDAY

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Scholarly Clark Shaughnessey spends many an unpleasant afternoon with the motley squad at his disposal at the University of Chicago, but it's doubtful if any cause the Maroon mentor deeper regret than those when he must sit and look across the field at the Ohio State bench and he faces that task Saturday.

When Shaughnessey looks at the Buck squad and sees the gridders "three deep" at every position it must be impossible for him to suppress a sigh and mutter: "And they could have been mine."

True, too, for had Shaughnessey so desired he could today be the head coach of the Bucks instead of Gruff Francis A. Schmidt.

When "Sad Sam" Willaman was ousted as coach of the Bucks, Athletic Director L. W. St. John began a long search for a man who could satisfy the loud ravings of alumni and Columbus fans.

After painstaking investigation, St. John came up with a list of three candidates—his top choices for the job.

On the list were: No. 1—Dana Bible then at Nebraska; No. 2, Clark Shaughnessey, then at Tulane; and No. 3, Nobel Kizer of Purdue.
